Susan Point:

Susan Point Dale Croes, Susan Point, Gary Wyatt, 2014 A gorgeous collection of prints by one of the Northwest's leading artists. Over the past thirty years Susan Point has become the preeminent Coast Salish artist of her generation exploring many different modern and traditional themes in a wide variety of media. She has received major public commissions in her home province of British Columbia as well as throughout the Northwest coast, the traditional territory of her people, creating extraordinary monumental sculptures that grace important public buildings. Her glass sculptures are collected around the world. This is the first book devoted exclusively to her works on paper. Over the past thirty years Point has been an innovator in printmaking, adapting traditional Coast Salish themes to modern art techniques, translating the heritage of her culture to the wider world while creating a body of work that appeals to art collectors from around the globe. Her synthesis of contemporary and traditional styles has resulted in a formidable artistic accomplishment. This beautifully designed volume collects 160 of her prints together for the first time and is sure to inspire and amaze those who see it. Susan Point Dale R. Croes, Susan A. Point, 2014-06

Susan Point Gary Wyatt, Michael Kew, Kenji Nagai, 2000 Native American Salish artist Susan Point did not take up art until she was in her late twenties but since then has immersed herself in the study of traditional Coast Salish art and culture. She says Coast Salish art is relatively unknown to most people today as it was an almost lost art form after European contact, the reason being that Salish lands were the first to be settled by Europeans. Because of this, over the years I have spent a great deal of my time trying to revive traditional Coast Salish art and also attempting to educate the public to the fact that there was and still is another art indigenous to the central Pacific Northwest. Coast Point's striking and distinctive art, from jewelry in precious metals to prints, paintings and monumental pieces in wood and glass, has won worldwide acclaim and a worldwide audience. An innovator with a strong personal style, she likes to express ancestral concepts and designs in media such as glass and bronze as well as the more traditional wood. In creating my art, she says, I feel a need to continually express my cultural background and beliefs, yet at the same time my work continues to evolve with changes both within and outside of my community. Michael Kew describes the traditional art, culture and beliefs of the central Coast Salish, which of all the Northwest Coast cultures is among the least familiar to the general public. Because much of the art was closely associated with private religious expression, it was seldom displayed or sold to collectors. Peter Macnair contributes an engaging and enlightening biography that looks at the artistic evolution of Susan Point. Bill McLennan briefly examines the tradition of housepost carving among the Coast Salish and Susan Point's interpretations of these large woodcarvings.

The Sexual Subject Mandy Merck, 2013-11-05 The Sexual Subject brings together writing on sexuality which has appeared in Screen over the past two decades It reflects the journal's continuing engagement with questions of sexuality and signification in the cinema an engagement which has had a profound influence on the development of the academic study of film and on alternative film and video practice The collection opens with Laura Mulvey's classic Visual Pleasure and Narrative Cinema with its conjunction of semiotics and psychoanalysis the critical approach which is most closely associated with Screen's rise to international prominence The reader then goes on to explore the particular questions and debates which that conjunction provoked arguments around pornography and the representation of the body questions of the representation of femininity and masculinity of the female spectator and of the social subject Many of the writings in this Reader have become indispensable texts within the study of film The purpose of the Reader is not only to make the articles available to a wider readership and to a new generation but also to pose new conjunctions making connections in one volume between debates and inquiries which spanned two crucial decades of film theory The Sexual Subject is intended not only for all those with a particular interest in film and film theory but for anyone with a serious commitment to cultural theory theories of representation and questions of sexuality and gender
