The Diary of Susie King Taylor, Civil War Nurse Susie King Taylor, 2004 Excerpts from the diary of a woman who served as nurse to a regiment of black soldiers fighting for the Union during the Civil War including her observations on the treatment of coloreds after the war. Time of Their Lives Susie King Taylor, Bertha Westbrook Reid, 2025-09-16 Using digitally restored page images from the original publications first published in 1902 and 1923 the lives of a respected American Civil War nurse and a beloved silent screen matinee idol are revisited in this biographical collection. Susie King Taylor and Bertha Westbrook Reid create a warm portrait about two notable individuals who changed society in vastly different ways through tragedy and an awareness of the destructive powers of drug abuse. Also included in this edition is additional biographical information of little known historical facts following the deaths of King in 1912 and Reid in 1923 that haven't been published previously. Reminiscences of My Life in Camp with the 33d United States Colored Troops: Late 1st S. C. Volunteers Susie Taylor, 2018-11-24 Susie King Taylor was the only African American woman to publish a memoir of her Civil War wartime experiences. Negro narratives of the Civil War are few. Susie King Taylor's 1902 slender volume Reminiscences of My Life in Camp written with an earnest simplicity records in camp the experience of a woman born a slave who was for four years a regimental laundress and nurse in the Thirty-third United States Colored Infantry earlier First South Carolina Colored Troop. In April 1862 Susie Baker and many other African Americans fled to St Simons Island occupied at the time by Union forces. While at the school on St Simons Island Baker married Edward King a black noncommissioned officer in the First South Carolina Volunteers of African Descent later reflagged as 33rd United States Colored Troops. For three years she moved with her husband's and brothers' regiment serving as nurse and laundress and teaching many of the black soldiers to read and write during their off-duty hours. As Taylor notes, "There are many people who do not know what some of the colored women did during the war. There were hundreds of them who assisted the Union soldiers by hiding them and helping them to escape. Many were punished for taking food to the prison stockades for the prisoners. In describing Confederates' treacherous use of blackface Taylor writes, "When the rebels saw these boats they ran out of the city. The regiment landed and marched up the street where they spied the rebels who had fled from the city. They were hiding behind a house about a mile or so away. Their faces blackened to disguise themselves as negroes and our boys as they advanced toward them halted a second saying, 'They are black men. Let them come to us.' About the author: Susie King Taylor 1848-1912 was the first Black Army nurse. She tended to an all-Black army troop named the 1st South Carolina Volunteers Union later redesignated the 33rd United States Colored Infantry Regiment where her husband served for four years during the Civil War. Despite her service like many African American nurses she was never paid for her work. As the author of Reminiscences of My Life in Camp with the 33d United States Colored Troops: Late 1st S. C. Volunteers she was the only African American woman to publish a memoir of her wartime experiences. She was also
