Managing crises in defense industry Steven R. Linke, 1996 National planning for the expeditious recovery and expansion of essential industrial production facilities is often geared only to largescale declared emergencies Under the worst scenario of a global war all necessary authorities and funding are assumed to be available But more often lesser emergencies require responses without the broad powers and commitment associated with a declared national emergency A real emergency can provide insight into the appropriateness of planned management approaches and the adequacy of available authorities This account of two actual emergencies provides lessons on how statutory procedures could be improved regulations clarified the government data base expanded and steps taken to speed up the process to be followed in the event of other crises In May 1988 the United States lost half of its capacity to produce ammonium perchlorate when explosions and fire destroyed one of the two producing plants Ammonium perchlorate is the oxidizer essential to solid fuel rocket motors Here without question was an excellent test case Existing ammonium perchlorate had to be carefully allocated and additional production capacity was needed numerous ongoing production programs for both strategic and conventional systems needed the product and some would be curtailed if sufficient ammonium perchlorate was not available This paper documents the government s actions and decision making process in dealing with various legal and administrative hurdles in both restoring the capacity and allocating available ammonium perchlorate European Security After 9/11 Matthew Sussex, 2017-07-05 Much scholarly attention has been paid to the United States response to the events of 9 11 This timely volume broadens our understanding of the impact of the attacks by instead considering their consequences for European security and for the relationship between the US and leading European states Bringing together an impressive collection of experts this work will be an excellent resource for courses on international security European politics and international relations Defense and Security Karl DeRouen Jr., Uk Heo, 2005-09-27 An authoritative up to date examination of the national security and defense policies of 50 influential nations and regions across the globe Defense and Security A Compendium of National Armed Forces and Security Policies presents highly readable authoritative essays profiling the defense and security policies of over 50 individual countries and regions with a focus on present day developments Written by leading national and international scholars and edited by eminent political science experts Karl DeRouen and Uk Heo the essays take an in depth look at each nation s current security situation defense spending present and potential military confrontations civil military relations alliances relations to terrorism and other topics of importance Historical events and conflicts are highlighted as well with emphasis on the post Cold War era The essays are parallel in structure allowing readers to pinpoint similarities and draw comparisons among nations The two volume set also includes a detailed introduction featuring a cross national comparison
