The Multinational Corporation And Social Change:

The Multinational Corporation and Social Change David Ernest Apter, Louis Wolf Goodman, 1976 The World as a Company Town Ahamed Idris - Soven, Elizabeth Idris - Soven, Mary K. Vaughan, Organization Theory and the Multinational Corporation Sumantra Ghoshal, 2016-07-27 Despite a shared interest in the analysis of complex organizations operating in complex environments macro organization theory and research on the multinational corporation have developed quite independently of each other This book the product of a collaborative endeavour by scholars from both fields represents the first systematic effort to build a broad bridge between these two areas of research Functioning of the Multinational Corporation Anant R. Negandhi, 2013-10-22 Functioning of the Multinational Corporation A Global Comparative Study is a collection of papers that discusses the roles played by multinational corporation in addressing societal problems The title outlines and analyzes the issues and conflicts between multinational corporations and states The text first covers the concept of multinational corporations Next the selection tackles global issues such as economic independence socio cultural impact of transnational enterprises and transfer pricing problems The text also deals with strategies policy making and organizational adaptability of multinational corporations In the last part the title analyzes the individuals who manage multinational corporations in terms of their backgrounds education training and outlook The book will be of great interest to sociologists political scientists economists and behavioral scientists Multinational Corporations and Organization Theory Christoph Dörrenbächer, Mike Geppert, 2017-02-24 This volume covers a range of on going and newly emerging debates in the study of multinational companies MNCs A key aim is to consolidate and make available in one place new conceptual methodological and critical MNC research The Multinational Firm Glenn Morgan, Peer Hull Kristensen, Richard Whitley, 2003 In contrast to the traditional view of multinational firms as cohesive rational actors maximizing the use of resources across national boundaries the contributors to this volume argue that they are complex social arenas where competing groups draw on resources from their own socially embedded locations in developing new transnational social relationships As firms seek to manage across national and institutional boundaries they stretch their existing capacities and routines and develop new sets of transnational social relationships through different groups competing and cooperating These processes occur at a number of levels which are explored in different empirical settings Firstly at the level of governance multinational firms may develop conflicts between investors from different national contexts e g between the arms length orientation of Anglo Saxon institutional investors and the more committed orientation of investors in certain European and Asian contexts The tension between opening the firm up for foreign investors in order to have access to more and cheaper capital and the consequent effects on management strategy is explored in a number of chapters Secondly at the level of coordinating activities across different sites multinationals may encourage competition between plants in different countries as well as seeking to transfer best practices The result may be pressure on managers and employees in certain plants to give up traditional practices and employment rights Thirdly multinational firms operate in environments where other forms of coordinating international business activity may also occur e g cartels or the creation of international regulatory activity They therefore compete for the regulatory space in complex political environments that will enable them to prosper

Multinational Corporations And The Third World C.J. Dixon,2019-03-06 This book an outcome of the conference in 1983 held at the University of Birmingham examines the varied roles played by multinational corporations in the economies of the Third World countries and concentrates more closely on regional national sectoral or corporate levels
