

SOCIAL CHANGE

Social change is defined by sociologists as alterations in the basic structures of society or a social group.

APPROACHES

Structural-functionalism

Social change should serve the best interests of society, with the goal of maintaining equilibrium and balance within the social system.

Conflict Theory

Social change happens suddenly when conflict boils over, upending the status flow.

EXAMPLE

The Industrial Revolution

The Industrial Revolution was a period of significant social and economic change marked by the widespread development of new technologies, transportation and communication systems, and the growth of factories and mass production. Urbanization, labor rights, and women's rights took center stage.

New economic approaches have begun to emerge but traditional methods are still being implemented. As both systems provide different solutions to society's economic issues thoughtful research and analysis is required regarding the tactics and strategies that both theories utilize. Comparative Approaches to Old and New Institutional Economics is an essential reference source that discusses the sequential history of these two economic theories as well as their application to global fiscal disputes. Featuring research on topics such as international relations business management and institutionalism this book is ideally designed for economists analysts managers researchers practitioners academicians and students seeking coverage on the parallel methods of these economic philosophies.

Social Structure and Mobility in Economic Development Neil J. Smelser, Seymour Martin Lipset, The foundation of this volume is the notion that the several processes of change constituting economic and social development are systematically interrelated. The essence of development is the appearance of rapid rates of increases in many different indices output per capita political participation literacy and the like. These quantitative changes are however commonly accompanied by vast changes in the social structure markets emerge political bureaucracies arise and new educational systems appear. Written by the leading authorities on the subject this group of papers tackles the causes and consequences of social mobility. Each author brings his particular skills to bear on various aspects of the problem in studies of persons moving from rural to urban settings from one kind of industry to another and from one prestige level to another. Several of the papers review the theoretical and methodological issues involved in comparative research on social mobility while others compare and contrast traditional and modern stratification systems Various papers explore the economic religious and psychological basis of social mobility concluding with enquiry into the consequences of rapid mobility especially in terms of the political stability of developing nations Because social mobility is a central consideration in any study of economic and social change every student of change will use this pioneering reference source as a text for all future research Contributors include Otis Dudley Duncan Harold L Wilensky Michael G Smith Bert F Hoselitz Wilbert E Moore Natalie Rogoff Ramsy Gideon Sjoberg Reinhard Bendix Harry Crockett David Matza Lester Seligman and Gino Germani Neil J Smelser is emeritus professor Department of Sociology University of California Berkeley Seymour Martin Lipset was professor of sociology and director of the Institute of International Studies at the University of California Berkeley
