Noir and Blanchot William S. Allen,2020-01-23 In dark or desperate times the artwork is placed in a difficult position Optimism seems na ve while pessimism is no better During some of the most demanding years of the 20th century two distinctive bodies of work sought to respond to this problem the writings of Maurice Blanchot and American film noir Both were seeking not only to respond to the times but also to critically reflect them but both were often criticised for their own darkness Understanding how this darkness became the means of responding to the darkness of the times is the focus of Noir and Blanchot which examines key films from the period including Double Indemnity and Vertigo alongside Blanchot s writings particularly his 1948 narrative Death Sentence What emerges from this investigation is the complex manner in which these works disrupt the experience of time and the event and in doing so expose an entirely different mode of material expression

Kirkland, 2012-10-11 Winner of the 2013 Symposium Book Award presented by the Symposium Canadian Journal of Continental Philosophy Modern interpreters of Plato's Socrates have generally taken the dialogues to be aimed at working out objective truth Attending closely to the texts of the early dialogues and the question of virtue in particular Sean D Kirkland suggests that this approach is flawed that such concern with discovering external facts rests on modern assumptions that would have been far from the minds of Socrates and his contemporaries This isn't however to accuse Socrates of any kind of relativism Through careful analysis of the original Greek and of a range of competing strands of Plato scholarship Kirkland instead brings to light a radical proto phenomenological Socrates for whom what virtue is is what has always already appeared as virtuous in everyday experience of the world even if initial appearances are unsatisfactory or obscure and in need of greater scrutiny and clarification Access to Treaty

Lectures on the Philosophy of the Human Mind Thomas Brown, David Welsh, 1860 Routledge Library Editions: Semantics and Semiology Various Authors, 2022-07-30 Semantics and semiology are two of the most important branches of linguistics and have proven to be fecund areas for research. They examine language structures and how they are dictated by both the meanings and forms of communication. Semantics is employed by focusing on the denotation of words and fixed word combinations, and semiology by studying sign and sign processes. As numerous interrelated fields connect to and sub disciplines branch off from these major spheres, they are essential to a thorough grounding in linguistics and crucial for further study. Routledge Library Editions Semantics and Semiology collects together wide ranging works of scholarship that together provide a comprehensive overview of the preceding theoretical landscape and expand and extend it in numerous directions. A number of interrelated disciplines are also discussed in conjunction with semantics and semiology such as anaphora, pragmatics, syntax, discourse analysis, and the philosophy of language. This set reissues 14 books originally published between 1960 to 2000 and will be of interest to students of linguistics and the philosophy of language.

Language and Materialism Rosalind Coward, John Ellis, 2016-11-18 First published in 1977, this book presents a comprehensive and lucid guide through the labyrinths of semiology and structuralism, perhaps the most significant systems of study to have been developed in the twentieth century. The authors describe the early presuppositions of structuralism and semiology which claim to be a materialist theory of language based on Saussure's notion of the sign. They show how these presuppositions have been challenged by work following Althusser's development of the Marxist theory of ideology and by Lacan's re-reading of Freud. The book explains how the encounter of two disciplines, psychoanalysis and Marxism, on the ground of their common problem, language, has produced a new understanding of society and its subjects. It produces a critical re-examination of the traditional Marxist theory of ideology together with the concepts of sign and identity of the subject.
