Synthesis Of Traditional And Modern In The Evolution Of Third World Societies:

Synthesis of Traditional and Modern in the Evolution of Third World Societies Nodari Simonia, 1992-02-28 In Soviet literature this theoretical study of the evolution of Third World countries represents one of the first efforts to deviate from dogmatic Stalinist methodology in analyzing Eastern and Western societies Nodari Simonia compares two Western models of capitalist development and describes a third model in the developing countries when analyzing the processes of socio economic and state political development of countries in Asia and North Africa Simonia also provides case studies of the third model of parliamentary authoritarianism in India and Malaysia of controlled democracy in Indonesia Pakistan and Egypt and absolutist regimes in Saudi Arabia and Iran under the Shah This unusual synthesis by a senior Soviet scholar should provoke considerable interest among academics and professionals engaged in Soviet political theory and social and economic development studies This initial study in Greenwood s new Series on Soviet and American Studies on the Third World first defines the major characteristics of countries in Western Europe where the birth of capitalism was a spontaneous process and then points to other countries where capitalism arrived later and transitional and catch up processes were needed The first part of the book gives a historical explanation for much of what is happening in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe today The second part discusses the emergence and development of capitalism in Eastern or Oriental countries and how capitalism was introduced and developed under external military political pressures Simonia also shows how colonialism was an objectively inevitable process The author counters traditional Soviet views and also argues against some Western and Oriental scholars on questions concerning the synthesis of traditional and modern characteristics in Asia and North Africa The third part of the book examines different versions of synthesis in these states A short bibliography and index complete the book The International Politics of Eurasia: v. 4: The Making of Foreign Policy in Russia and the New States of Eurasia S. Frederick Starr, Karen Dawisha, 2024-11-01 This ambitious ten volume series develops a comprehensive analysis of the evolving world role of the post Soviet successor states Each volume considers a different factor influencing the relationship between internal politics and international relations in Russia and in the western and southern tiers of newly independent states The collapse of the Soviet Union and the discrediting of Marxism Leninism as a source of political legitimacy have prompted a search for fresh principles of political organization that will shape the nature of political culture in all the post Soviet countries This volume looks at the making of foreign policy in Russia and the new states of Eurasia Before and After the Fall Nuno P. Monteiro, Fritz Bartel, 2021-12-23 As the Cold War came to a close in 1991 US President George H W Bush famously saw its shocking demise as the dawn of a new world order that would prize peace and expand liberal democratic capitalism Thirty years later with China on the rise Russia resurgent and populism roiling the Western world it is clear that Bush s declaration remains elusive In this book leading scholars of international affairs offer fresh insight into why the hopes of the early post Cold War period have been dashed and the challenges ahead As the world marks the thirtieth anniversary of the collapse of the Soviet Union this book brings together historians and political scientists to examine the changes and continuities in world politics that emerged at the end of the Cold War and shaped the world we inhabit today
