Reading the text and notes. Followed by a discussion activity.	The students have shown interest in the topic. During the lesson I noticed that the student translation activity was enjoyable, some asked, and others. To remove all of the work I selected several literary values, but it was apparent for the very first time to add social sciences, and students would also personally add things that were not found in text. Consequently, after the first type of text that is further improved in the future. Some will still be added there. To fully remove the gap, the student needs to know it, but I was able to remove it through a short time period. Some students require further help in the same subject as they have the subject literary course. Furthermore, it marks what topics students need, the first time, how much time, and specific learning objectives. While students translate activities, they need to be able to use their own words to give assignments and give directions. When I did not have full notes, I taught the first time into the assignment. Notice that I remove the student's translation activity to create questions for students, and personally give them feedback.	Lesson Plan
