Tense and Aspect Systems in Hiberno-English Patricia Ronan, 2016-03-02 Document from the year 2000 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics University of Marburg language English abstract This study investigates the tense and aspect systems in use in Irish English which is also called Hiberno English Against the background of previous research corpus material mainly consisting of Dublin English is discussed The corpus consists of close to a quarter of a million words collected manually mainly from written text with some additional examples from participant observation In addition to investigating the tense and aspect forms in use possibilities for the genesis of the categories are discussed and the potential influence from Early Modern English and Late Modern English is assessed as well as the potential input from the Irish language It is suggested that the tense system corresponds to that of Standard British English whereas the aspectual system differs to varying degrees in perfect progressive and habitual marking It is further argued that the majority of the specially used aspectual categories in Hiberno English could have been influenced in their development by influence from both the Irish language i.e. Gaelic and by influence from earlier British English language structures which were in use during the formative stages of the variety. This is not the case for the distinctive Hiberno English after perfect however which is entirely modeled on a corresponding Irish language structure.

TRENDS IN LINGUISTICS is a series of books that open new perspectives in our understanding of language. The series publishes state of the art work on core areas of linguistics across theoretical frameworks as well as studies that provide new insights by building bridges to neighbouring fields such as neuroscience and cognitive science. TRENDS IN LINGUISTICS considers itself a forum for cutting edge research based on solid empirical data on language in its various manifestations including sign languages. It regards linguistic variation in its synchronic and diachronic dimensions as well as in its social contexts as important sources of insight for a better understanding of the design of linguistic systems and the ecology and evolution of language. TRENDS IN LINGUISTICS publishes monographs and outstanding dissertations as well as edited volumes which provide the opportunity to address controversial topics from different empirical and theoretical viewpoints. High quality standards are ensured through anonymous reviewing.

Over the past few decades the book series Linguistische Arbeiten Linguistic Studies comprising over 500 volumes has made a significant contribution to the development of linguistic theory both in Germany and internationally. The series will continue to deliver new impulses for research and maintain the central insight of linguistics that progress can only be made in acquiring new knowledge about human languages both synchronically and diachronically by closely combining empirical and theoretical analyses. To this end we invite submission of high quality linguistic studies from all the central areas of general linguistics and the linguistics of individual languages which address topical questions, discuss new data and advance the development of linguistic theory.
