Clum, 2012-01-02 In studying performances of marriage in modern and contemporary British and American drama Clum highlights the fact that paradoxically at a time when theatre was both popular entertainment and high culture many of the most commercially and artistically successful plays about marriage were written by homosexual men Beginning with Oscar Wilde and focusing on some of the most successful British and American playwrights of the past century including Somerset Maugham Noël Coward Terence Rattigan and Eynon Williams in England and Clyde Fitch George Kelly Tennessee Williams William Inge and Edward Albee in the US The Drama of Marriage looks at how the plays they wrote about heterosexual marriage continue to impact contemporary gay playwrights and the depiction of marriage today and their popular representation in literary and cinematic texts he illuminates broader issues of gender social class national and racial identities emotional life and the creation of a national myth in twentieth century Britain In particular Francis argues that the flyer s relationship to fear aggression loss of his comrades bodily dismemberment and psychological breakdown reveals broader ambiguities surrounding the dominant understandings of masculinity in the middle decades of the century Despite his star appeal cultural representations of the flyer encompassed both the gentle chivalrous warrior and the uncompromising agent of destruction Paying particular attention to the romantic universe of wartime aircrew Francis reveals the extraordinary contrasts of their daily lives dicing with death in the sky one moment before sitting down to lunch with wives and children in the next Male and female experiences during the war were not polarized and antithetical but were complementary and interrelated a conclusion which has implications for the history of gender in modern Britain that reach well beyond either the specialized military culture of the wartime RAF or the chronological parameters of the Second World War
