Classroom Nonverbal Communication Sean Neill, 2017-09-29 Nonverbal signals are less easily controlled than words and thus potentially offer reliable information to both teachers and children on each other s true intentions But such signals are also more ambiguous than words and this makes them valuable when teachers or children wish to send a message they do not want to be challenged. Even so, misunderstandings can occur for example between different ethnic groups. Originally published in 1991, Sean Neill explores how children's skill in using and understanding nonverbal signals increases with age. The appropriate nonverbal signals for teachers differ from those used in informal conversation because of the teacher's controlling, instructing and encouraging role and this creates problems for new teachers who also find it difficult to interpret the limited feedback from the class. A detailed coverage of teachers and children's signals leads on to a survey of how teachers acquire nonverbal skills and research on effective training. Classroom Nonverbal Communication provides the only comprehensive survey of these areas for staff involved in the initial and in-service training of teachers and in staff development. Classroom social arrangements are permanently reflected in seating layout and room design which can allow teachers and administrators to influence classroom interaction through advance planning. For these groups this richly illustrated volume assesses how effective such planning really is. Sean Neill has researched room layout and nonverbal communication in education since 1975 and has published many papers dealing with these issues. He provides a uniquely comprehensive survey of the research evidence on classroom nonverbal communication.

Joint Utterance Construction in Japanese Conversation Makoto Hayashi, 2003. This book focuses on how participants in Japanese conversation negotiate and achieve joint courses of action within a single turn at talk. Using the methodology of Conversation Analysis as a central framework, this book describes in detail the structures and procedures used by Japanese speakers to jointly produce a coherent grammatical unit in progress and explores the range of social actions that speakers accomplish by employing that practice. This study is part of a larger project intended to investigate how humans achieve intricate coordination of their behavior with that of co-participants in everyday social encounters and how language plays a constitutive part in making such micro-level social coordination possible. Through a close examination of joint utterance construction in Japanese, this book contributes to a growing body of research into the mutual influence between the grammatical organization of language and the organization of situated human conduct in social interaction.

Embodied Interaction Jürgen Streeck, Charles Goodwin, Curtis D. LeBaron, 2011-08-15. Leading international scholars provide a coherent framework for analyzing body movement and talk in the production of meaning.

Pathways to Transformation Carrie J. Boden, Sola M. Kippers, 2012-08-01. Pathways to Transformation: Learning in Relationship is an edited collection that synthesizes current research on transformative learning and expands the current knowledge base. This book is timely and significant as it provides a synthesis of some of the most exciting research in two fields: adult education and human services. The objectives of this themed edited collection Pathways to Transformation: Learning in Relationship are threefold. First, this collection serves as a space to synthesize current research on transformative learning. Through an extensive literature review, the editors have discerned several important strands of research in the area of transformative learning and solicited chapters dealing with these topics.

The second objective of the collection is to expand the current knowledge base in the area of transformative learning by creating a space for dialog on the subject and bringing together diverse voices The third objective of the collection is to transcend the field of adult education with a specific goal to reach an audience in human services psychology counseling social work marriage and family therapy

Spoken Discourse Rodney Jones, 2016-07-28 This book provides an overview of current theories of and methods for analysing spoken discourse It includes discussions of both the more traditional approaches of pragmatics conversation analysis interactional sociolinguistics linguistic anthropology and critical discourse analysis and more recently developed approaches such as multimodal discourse analysis and critical sociolinguistics Rather than treating these perspectives as mutually exclusive the book introduces a framework based on principles from mediated discourse analysis in which different approaches to spoken discourse are seen as complementing and informing one another In this framework spoken discourse is seen as mediated through a complex collection of technological semiotic and cultural tools which enable and constrain people's ability to engage in different kinds of social actions enact different kinds of social identities and form different kinds of social relationships A major focus of the volume is on the way technological tools like telephones broadcast media digital technologies are changing the way people communicate with spoken language The book is suitable for use as a textbook in advanced courses in discourse analysis and language in social interaction and will also be of interest to scholars in a variety of fields including linguistics sociology media studies and anthropology

Kids Talk Susan M. Hoyle, Carolyn Temple Adger, 1998-09-10 Between early childhood and adulthood language acquisition is succeeded by a bloom of repertoire for managing interaction a growing sensitivity to the relation of language and society an expanding ability to wield power through the strategic use of language and an increasing sophistication in framing speech activities This book examines a wide range of language practices among school age children and teenagers using data from naturally occurring recorded talk and from careful observation of interaction in peer groups The contributors analyze talk at play at school and at work documenting the growing communicative skills of young people while always focusing on what young speakers themselves do with and through language Theoretical constructs to which the contributors appeal include Goffman's notion of footing and Hymes communicative competence as well as multiple characterizations of discourse structure The chapters show older children as strategic language users dynamic actors who are often concerned with defining themselves as a distinctive group different from adults yet who just as often display proficiency at sophisticated discourse activities that presage those of adulthood

He-Said-She-Said Marjorie Harness Goodwin, 1990 carefully researched and clearly written Goodwin makes a major step in redefining the enterprise of studying language use in context and across contexts American Ethnologist I recommend the book highly John Haviland American Anthropologist Goodwin's thoughtful interpretation of these examples of children's conversation is replete with wise insights challenging critical darts and well referenced links to a wide literature Child Development Abstracts she didn't just take field notes She hung around with the children in her neighborhood until they trusted her then tape recorded their natural conversations as they played together This is Goodwin's long awaited compilation of years of painstaking analysis of the transcripts of those tapes It is not only one of the best sources if not the best source for anyone interested in how boys and girls use language in their daily lives indeed to constitute their daily lives it is also a model ethnographic study of language in its natural setting Deborah Tannen author of You Just Don't Understand Women and Men in Conversation This groundbreaking study describes in detail the complexities of children's communication By integrating the analysis of conversation with ethnography Marjorie Harness Goodwin systematically and empirically reveals how a group of urban black children constitute their social world through talk

Proposals for Research Gerry Stahl, 2011-01-11 My career has usually been funded by grants Here are some of the proposals I wrote at the University of Colorado and at Drexel University Successful grant proposals are tricky to write The ones reproduced here might provide helpful examples They may also provide explicit statements of some of the goals of my research over the years International Books in Print, 1995 Barbara Hopkinson, [Anonymus AC01401231], 1995 The Research Process in Classroom Discourse Analysis Kim Marie Cole, Jane Zuengler, 2017-09-25 This volume gives intellectual space to a range of current perspectives on classroom discourse research and provides a forum for conversations about the research process Classroom discourse researchers from different theoretical perspectives provide five separate analyses of the same instructional unit in a high school biology class using the same set of data Interwoven with the five research reports are several conversations among the editors and researchers regarding specific aspects of the research process These conversations illuminate some of the actual decisions that researchers make when looking at data and crafting their analyses This book is intended for graduate students researchers and teacher educators across the fields of applied linguistics and education who are interested in studying classroom discourse and more generally language in use With its focus on both the research process and the outcomes of research as well as on the theory method relationship this book is relevant for courses in research methodology language in education applied linguistics discourse analysis language development and multiculturalism in the classroom

Group Cognition Gerry Stahl, 2006 Exploring the software design social practices and collaboration theory that would be needed to support group cognition collective knowledge that is constructed by small groups online Innovative uses of global and local networks of linked computers make new ways of collaborative working learning and acting possible In Group Cognition Gerry Stahl explores the technological and social reconfigurations that are needed to achieve computer supported collaborative knowledge building group cognition that transcends the limits of individual cognition Computers can provide active media for social group cognition where ideas grow through the interactions within groups of people software functionality can manage group discourse that results in shared understandings new meanings and collaborative learning Stahl offers software design prototypes analyzes empirical instances of collaboration and elaborates a theory of collaboration that takes the group rather than the individual as the unit of analysis Stahl's design studies concentrate on mechanisms to support group formation multiple interpretive perspectives and the negotiation of group knowledge in applications as varied as collaborative curriculum development by teachers writing summaries by students and designing space voyages by NASA engineers His empirical analysis shows how in small group collaborations the group constructs intersubjective knowledge that emerges from and appears in the discourse itself This discovery of group meaning becomes the springboard for Stahl's outline of a social theory of collaborative knowing Stahl also discusses such related issues as the distinction between meaning making at the group level and interpretation at the individual level appropriate research methodology philosophical directions for group cognition theory and suggestions for further empirical work

Peer Interactions in New Content and Language Integrated Settings Nathan J.

Devos, 2015-11-04 Trade schools universities and programs for international students have begun to experiment with Content and Language Integrated Learning CLIL as a viable pedagogy for instruction as the pedagogy of CLIL increasingly gains recognition as a practical form of language and content education in Europe and beyond and its application in instructional settings becomes more diverse Corresponding with CLIL's growth this book focuses on foreign language use during peer interactions in a new CLIL setting It particularly concentrates on how to conduct research when the focus is on learner interactions The theoretical background research methods and research instruments are explained in a brief and understandable manner This book is intended for those interested in CLIL and peer interactions and includes a framework and ideas for investigating new CLIL contexts in a practical manner allowing undergraduate and graduate students to conduct their own research in these settings

Pragmatic Development Anat Ninio, 2018-02-12 The pragmatic system consists of the rules for appropriate and communicatively effective language use This book provides an integrated view of the acquisition of the various pragmatic subsystems including expression of communicative intents participation in conversation and production of extended discourse The three components of the pragmatic system are presented in a way that makes clear how they relate to each other and why they all fall under the rubric of pragmatics The authors combine their own extensive work in these three domains with an overview of the field of pragmatic development describing how linguistic pragmatics relates to other aspects of language development to social development and to becoming a member of one's culture

Pragmalinguistics Jan Prucha, 1983-01-01 This volume describes and evaluates the latest theories empirical findings and applications in the field of pragmalinguistics developed in some socialist states of Europe mainly in

Czechoslovakia Poland the German Democratic Republic and the USSR The results of the author's own research in pragmatically oriented psycholinguistics are included as well The main approaches through which the pragmalinguistic studies have been performed in Eastern Europe are those of functional stylistics textlinguistics rhetorics psycholinguistics sociolinguistics social communication theory and semiotics Much attention is devoted in the book to applied research mainly in the spheres of education and instruction mass communication and propaganda
