Invisible Storytellers Sarah Kozloff,1989-11-03 Let me tell you a story each film seems to offer silently as its opening frames hit the screen But sometimes the film finds a voice an off screen narrator for all or part of the story From Wuthering Heights and Double Indemnity to Annie Hall and Platoon voice over narration has been an integral part of American movies Through examples from films such as How Green Was My Valley All About Eve The Naked City and Barry Lyndon Sarah Kozloff examines and analyzes voice over narration She refutes the assumptions that words should only play a minimal role in film that showing is superior to telling or that the technique is inescapably authoritarian the voice of god She questions the common conception that voice over is a literary technique by tracing its origins in the silent era and by highlighting the influence of radio documentaries and television She explores how first person or third person narration really affects a film in terms of genre conventions viewer identification time and nostalgia subjectivity and reliability In conclusion she argues that voice over increases film s potential for intimacy and sophisticated irony

First-Century Gospel Storytellers and Audiences Thomas E. Boomershine,2022-07-29 These essays explore the reconception of the Gospels as first century compositions of sound performed for audiences by storytellers rather than the anachronistic picture of a series of texts read by individual readers The new paradigm implicit in these initial experiments is based on the recent realization that the majority of persons 85 to 95 percent were illiterate and experienced the Jesus stories as members of audiences Either from memory or from memorized manuscripts the evangelists performed the Gospels as an evening s entertainment of two to four hours The audiences were predominantly addressed as Hellenistic Judeans who lived in the aftermath of the Roman Jewish war When heard whole the Gospels were vivid experiences of the central character of Jesus These studies of audience address and the interactions between first century storytellers and audiences reveal a dynamic performance literature that functioned as scripts for an ever expanding network of storytelling proclamations whose envisioned horizon was the whole world When the Gospels were told at one time from beginning to end they invited the listeners to move from being peripherally interested or initially opposed to Jesus to identifying themselves as disciples of Jesus and believers in him as the Messiah
