Managing Global Innovation Roman Boutellier, Oliver Gassmann, Maximilian von Zedtwitz, 2013-06-29 Globalization has changed the face of R D Local knowledge clusters are not only tapped by multinationals but increasingly by small and medium sized companies as well Global R D networks speed up the evolution of technology and ask for new management concepts Modern communication technologies create the global village but customers become more fastidious and request their own specific products well localized well tuned into their present business Integrated technology is required to cope with these needs The danger of over engineering has never been as great as today The question is frequently not whether some new features are technically feasible but whether customers are willing to accept and pay for it The first edition of Managing Global Innovation was sold out after few months clearly indicating the search for solutions to these challenges This second edition has been revised for clarity and actuality We have taken care to work in recent research findings as well as updating the case studies where appropriate This book is based on the growing importance of industrial global innovation and the lack of concepts to manage it For this book we conducted 320 interviews in 40 technology based highly internationalized companies including additional interviews in 1998 and 1999 for the second edition Our interview partners were R D managers and research directors from companies in Europe USA and Japan

Enhancing Organizational Performance

National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Techniques for the Enhancement of Human Performance, 1997-04-02 Total quality management TQM reengineering the workplace of the twenty first century the 1990s have brought a sense of urgency to organizations to change or face stagnation and decline according to Enhancing Organizational Performance Organizations are adopting popular management techniques some scientific some faddish often without introducing them properly or adequately measuring the outcome Enhancing Organizational Performance reviews the most popular current approaches to organizational change total quality management reengineering and downsizing in terms of how they affect organizations and people how performance improvements can be measured and what questions remain to be answered by researchers The committee explores how theory doctrine accepted wisdom and personal experience have all served as sources for organization design Alternative organization structures such as teams specialist networks associations and virtual organizations are examined Enhancing Organizational Performance looks at the influence of the organization s norms values and beliefs its culture on people and their performance identifying cultural levers available to organization leaders And what is leadership The committee sorts through a wealth of research to identify behaviors and skills related to leadership effectiveness The volume examines techniques for developing these skills and suggests new competencies that will become required with globalization and other trends Mergers networks alliances coalitions organizations are increasingly turning to new intra and inter organizational structures Enhancing Organizational Performance discusses how organizations cooperate to maximize outcomes The committee explores the changing missions of the U S Army as a case study that has relevance to any organization Noting that a musical greeting card contains more computing power than existed in the entire world before 1950 the committee addresses the impact of new technologies on performance With examples insights and practical criteria Enhancing Organizational Performance clarifies the nature of organizations and the prospects for performance improvement This book will be important to corporate leaders executives and managers faculty and students in organizational performance and the social sciences business journalists researchers and interested individuals Organisational Cultures: Networks, Clusters, Alliances Uwe Bußmann, 2014-02-01 Nowadays single companies are confronted with great difficulties The progress of the information technology and the distribution of the Internet as well as the changing demand of customers especially for no standardised products force them to react immediately In order to solve these problems the companies should work on the following aspects How can they reach the state of flexibility to meet the changing demand How can they compete within a market with increasing innovations of products and decreasing product life cycl How can they acquire the necessary capital technology and know how to compete How is it possible to optimise their corporate structures and achieve synergetic effects Competence, Governance, and Entrepreneurship Nicolai J. Foss, Volker Mahnke, 2002 The theory of the firm is a significant part of modern economics Because it informs strategic choices it is also highly relevant to business administration in particular Two dominant streams may be identified in the literature namely the competence and governance perspectives on the firm While there has been little direct discussion between the main proponents of these perspectives both claim that they are reaching for a strategic theory of the firm Such a theory would not only shed light on the classical questions considered in the theory of the firm e g why firms exist what determines their boundaries and internal organization but would also be helpful for informing strategy issues such as understanding strategic flexibility strategic options and the sources of competitive advantage This volume brings together leading thinkers on competence governance and entrepreneurship to advance and stimulate economic strategy research By pooling and mobilizing intellectual resources of both competence and governance perspectives the contributions show that an innovative joint venture between these two main perspectives potentially leads to a new avenue of future research on strategic issues such as corporate growth interfirm cooperation and corporate entrepreneurship

Intellectual Property Management in R&D Collaborations Martin A. Bader, 2006-10-13 With this work Martin Bader examines how companies can take an intellectual property lead during the early stages of inter firm research and development R D collaborations Previously little research has investigated the management of patents in the early phases of the innovation process Furthermore there is a dearth of research on patent management in the service industry sector in which intellectual property management remains a new concept Bader offers a detailed examination of the process by considering the service industry sector and analyzes a current relevant complex problem prominent in management research The research at hand stems from two phenomena both of which are based on knowledge gains achieved in the area of intellectual property management in recent years First the number of announced patent applications has increased by 20 30% per year even without considering multiple patent registrations in several countries Second the number of collaborative agreements in the innovation process has simultaneously increased However many R D collaborations eventually turn out to be successful so the question arises To whom does the intellectual property generated by a collaboration belong This ownership often is decided and specified during the early phases of the R D process

Risk-sharing in the Pharmaceutical Industry Gerrit Reepmeyer,2006-02-25 The productivity in pharmaceutical research and development faces intense pressure R D expenditures of the major US and European companies have topped US 33 billion in 2003 compared to around US 13 billion just a decade ago At the same time the number of new drug approvals has dropped from 53 in 1996 to only 35 in 2003 Moreover the protraction of clinical trials has significantly reduced the effective time of patent protection The consequences are devastating Monopoly profits have started to decline and the average costs per new drug have reached a record level of close to US 1 billion today As a result any failure of a new substance in the R D process can lead to considerable losses and the risks of introducing a new drug to the market have grown tremendously Particularly if a company is highly dependent on just a handful of mega selling blockbuster drugs the risks can be even greater For example Pfizer generated about 90% of its worldwide revenues in 2002 with just 8 products Any shortfall of a promising late stage drug candidate would have left Pfizer with a gaping hole in its product portfolio In order to deal with these risks many pharmaceutical companies have started to organize their R D in partnership In fact more than 600 alliances in pharmaceutical R D are signed every year Business Networks Udo H. Staber,Norbert V. Schaefer,Basu Sharma,2015-02-06 No detailed description available for Business Networks Arms and Innovation James Hasik,2008-09-15 With many of the most important new military systems of the past decade produced by small firms that won competitive government contracts defense industry consultant James Hasik argues in Arms and Innovation that small firms have a number of advantages relative to their bigger competitors Such firms are marked by an entrepreneurial spirit and fewer bureaucratic obstacles and thus can both be more responsive to changes in the environment and more strategic in their planning This is demonstrated Hasik shows by such innovation in military technologies as those that protect troops from roadside bombs in Iraq and the Predator drones that fly over active war zones and that are crucial to our new war on terror For all their advantages small firms also face significant challenges in access to capital and customers To overcome such problems they can form alliances either with each other or with larger companies Hasik traces the trade offs of such alliances and provides crucial insight into their promises and pitfalls This ground breaking study is a significant contribution to understanding both entrepreneurship and alliances two crucial factors in business generally It will be of interest to readers in the defense sector as well as the wider business community Vocational Training, European Journal ,1994
