Points of View in the Modern History of Psychology Claude E. Buxton, 2013-10-22

Points of View in the Modern History of Psychology is a collection of papers that presents each individual contributor's expert knowledge of history in the field of psychology. One paper examines Wilhelm Wundt's concept of psychology as the propaedeutic science surviving and inspiring a generation or more of psychologists. Another paper discusses the early sources and the basic conceptions of functionalism as used in America. John B. Watson proclaims behaviorism as a new discipline in psychology with defining features such as an objective deterministic scientific and experimental method that can be used in both human and animal studies. Lieberman 1979, Mackenzie 1977, Miller, Galanter and Pribram 1960 oppose behaviorism on the grounds that it slightes the purpose of psychology and focuses more on methodology to the detriment of theory. One paper notes that the acceptance or influence that a point of view has is based in some ways on the range and clarity of its connections with experimental and observational reality. This collection can prove useful for psychologists, behavioral scientists, psychiatrists, psychoanalysts, students of psychology, philosophy or general history who are interested in the many viewpoints of psychology.

Annals of Theoretical Psychology Joseph R. Royce, Leendert P. Mos, 2013-11-11

As such things happen, several manuscripts in the present volume were under review prior to the ones that appeared in Volume I of the Annals. A major difficulty encountered in the preparation of these volumes apart from working up to three years in advance of publication is eliciting appropriate commentary. If this format is to succeed, the commentary must be both engaging to the reader and satisfying to the author. It is not yet clear how successful we have been in this regard and indeed we do not feel bound to publish commentary with each manuscript that is accepted for publication. Nevertheless, we do invite readers' commentaries on published materials. The contributions by Jan Smedslund and Benjamin Wolman in this volume have been through an inordinately long publication lag. We have been in receipt of both manuscripts since early in 1981 and Dr Smedslund especially has since clarified and advanced his views elsewhere in print. K. B. Madsen and Joseph Rychlak submitted their manuscripts in the fall of 1981 while Michael Hyland and J. Philippe Rushton had first drafts of their manuscripts accepted for publication in the fall of 1982. We are grateful to our contributors for their expressed commitment to the Annals and assure potential contributors that the delay in publication is a mere matter of getting the series off the ground.

The Self Between Eugene Webb, 2014-12-01

After the disappointing events of the 1960s including the loss of Algeria, the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the American war in the former French colony of Indo-China, people in France began to look seriously to Freudianism in the transformed version of Jacques Lacan for a new way of understanding human relations and the relations between human beings and society The movement in France is not specifically psychoanalytic but developed against such a background Psychoanalytic thought acquired the kind of centrality in French intellectual life once associated with existentialism and Marxism and later with structuralism a centrality it probably never possessed in the United States even at the peak of its popularity The movement was a reassessment and rethinking of Freud's thought and influence and it was a movement that was almost unknown to the American public National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1984 Psychology's Compositional Problem K. Hillner,1987-01-01 The primary purpose of this book is to document the pervasive ramifications of the compositional problem the discipline's historical inability to define or give a technical specification to psychological phenomena for the conduction of academic experimental psychology at five levels of analysis methodological epiphenomenal explanatory metaphysical and normative
