Telling Stories Indigenous History And Memory In Australia And New Zealand:

Telling Stories Bain Attwood, Fiona Magowan, 2001 Recent decades have seen a tremendous upsurge of interest among the indigenous peoples of Australia and New Zealand in their history. Life stories, land claims, genealogy, song, dance, and painting have all made new contributions to the recovery and representation of the past. Telling Stories looks at the place of life stories and of memory in history, who tells life stories, the purpose for which they are told, the role of story and history in the politics of land claims, and the way language impacts on research and writing. Ann Parsonson writes about stories for land in the oral narratives of the Maori Land Court. Deborah Rose Bird retells the saga of Captain Cook. Andrew Erueti and Alan Ward examine Maori land law in the context of the Treaty claims process. Jeremy Beckett looks at the autobiographical oral history of Myles Lalor, and Bain Attwood discusses the stolen generations narrative. With Judith Binney, Fiona Magowan, W. H. Oliver, Basil Sansom, and Penny van Toorn, these contributors explore the questions arising when different kinds of history meet different kinds of evidence from different cultures, sometimes telling the same story from conflicting perspectives. Telling Stories is a timely book that freely explores the multiple forms of indigenous history in New Zealand and Australia.

Telling Stories Bain Attwood, Fiona Magowan, 2001 Exploring the various forms of indigenous storytelling in Australia and New Zealand, this study is a great contribution to the recovery and accurate representation of the past. Often telling the same story from different perspectives, it examines the places of life stories and of memory in history, who tells life stories, and the purpose for which they are told. The role of story and history in the politics of land claims and the impact of language on research and writing are also discussed in this comprehensive critical and analytic approach to the nature of stories.

Rethinking Settler Colonialism Annie E. Coombes, 2006-03-17 Focusing on the long history of contact between indigenous peoples and the white colonial communities who settled in Australia, Aotearoa New Zealand, Canada, and South Africa, this book investigates how histories of colonial settlement have been mythologized, narrated, and embodied in public culture in the twentieth century through monuments, exhibitions, and images. Telling Stories Bain Attwood, Fiona Magowan, 2001 This book looks at the place of life stories and of memory in history, who tells stories, the purpose for which they are told, the role of story in the politics of land claims, and the way language impacts on research and writing.

Witnessing Australian Stories Kelly Jean Butler, 2017-07-28 This book is about how Australians have responded to stories about suffering and injustice in Australia, presented in a range of public media including literature, history, films, and television. Those who have responded are both ordinary and prominent Australians: politicians, writers, and scholars. All have sought to come to terms with Australia's history by responding empathetically to stories of its marginalized citizens. Drawing upon international scholarship on collective memory, public history, testimony, and witnessing, this book represents a cultural history of contemporary Australia. It examines the forms of witnessing that dominated Australian public culture at the turn of the millennium. Since the late 1980s, witnessing has developed in Australia in response to the increasingly audible voices of indigenous peoples migrants and more recently asylum seekers As these voices became public they posed a challenge not only to scholars and politicians but also most importantly to ordinary citizens When former Prime Minister Kevin Rudd delivered his historic apology to Australia's indigenous peoples in February 2008 he performed an act of collective witnessing that affirmed the testimony and experiences of Aboriginal Australians The phenomenon of witnessing became crucial not only to the recognition and reparation of past injustices but to efforts to create a more cosmopolitan Australia in the present This is a vital addition to Transaction's critically acclaimed Memory and Narrative series History and memory Geoffrey

Carnivalizing Reconciliation Hanna Teichler, 2021-10-15 Transitional justice and national inquiries may be the most established means for coming to terms with traumatic legacies but it is in the more subtle social and cultural processes of memory work that the pitfalls and promises of reconciliation are laid bare This book analyzes within the realms of literature and film recent Australian and Canadian attempts to reconcile with Indigenous populations in the wake of forced child removal As Hanna Teichler demonstrates their systematic emphasis on the subjectivity of the victim is problematic reproducing simplistic narratives and identities defined by victimization Such fictions of reconciliation venture beyond simplistic narratives and identities defined by victimization offering new opportunities for confronting painful histories
