Count Data J. K. Lindsey, 1995-04-27 Categorical data analysis is a special area of generalised linear models which has become the most important area of statistical applications in many disciplines from medicine to social sciences This text presents the standard models and many newly developed ones in a language which can be immediately applied in many modern statistical packages such as GLIM GENSTAT S Plus as well as SAS and LISP STAT The book is structure around the distinction between independent events occurring to different individuals resulting in frequencies and repeated events occurring to the same individuals yielding counts The book demonstrates that much of modern statistics can be seen as special cases of categorical data models both generalized linear models and proportional hazards models can be fitted as log linear models More specialized topics such as Markov chains overdispersion and random effects are also covered Study of Turbojet Combustor Dynamics Using Sweep-frequency Data John R. Szuch, Francis J. Paulovich, William M. Bruton, 1970 The analysis of data obtained from sweep frequency testing of the 585 turbojet combustor is discussed Bode plots of the response of combustor pressure to sinusoidal disturbances in fuelspray nozzle pressure are presented for a range of fuel flows An analog simulation was developed and used to match the experimental data and to identify the combustion dynamics The effects of primary or burning zone fuel to air ratio on the system response were also investigated The experimental data were fit by linear transfer function forms to be used in overall system studies
