Expressions of Cameroon Art Tamara Northern, 1986 The Art of Cameroon Tamara Northern, 1984 Royal Art of Cameroon Tamara Northern, 1973 Afo-A-Kom Fred Ferretti, 1975 In 1966 the century old statue Afo A Kom mysteriously disappeared from its sanctuary in the remote Cameroon Kingdom of Kom triggering a world wide search that ended in a New York art gallery in the Fall of 1973 The story of Afo A Kom how its absence threatened the very existence of the Kom people and its eventual return to its home are told by the journalist whose stories of Afo A Kom aroused immense international interest when they appeared on the front pages of The New York Times Dustjacket Royal Art of Cameroon, the Art of the Bamenda-Tikar , 1973 The Sign of the Leopard Tamara Northern, William Benton Museum of Art, 1975

The Art of Status Jelena Subotić, 2025-06-26 An illuminating exploration of the relationship between the restitution of looted art global status and the international construction of national cultural heritage Why is art restitution a matter of politics How does the artwork displayed in national museums reflect the international status of the state that owns it Why do some states agree to return looted art and others resist National art collections have long been a way for states to compete with each other for status prestige and cultural worth in international society In many former imperial nations however these collections include art looted during imperial expansions and colonial occupations While this was once a sign of high international standing the markers of such status particularly in the context of art have since significantly changed A new international legal and normative architecture governing art provenance developed after World War II and became institutionalized in the 1990s and 2000s Since then there have been national and global social movements demanding the return of looted art This shift has established not only that looting is wrong but more importantly that restitution is morally right As a result of this reframing of what it means to own art an artifact s historical provenance has become a core element of its value and the search for provenance and demands for restitution a direct threat to state status The same objects that granted states high international status now threaten to provoke status decline In The Art of Status Jelena Subotić examines this relationship between the restitution of looted art and international status with a focus on the Parthenon Elgin Marbles the Benin Bronzes and a collection of paintings looted during the Holocaust that are now housed at the Serbian National Museum Subotić tells the story of these artworks how they were looted how they ended up on display in national museums and how the art restitution disputes have unfolded While these cases are different in terms of their historical context of looting and ownership claims the movements for their restitution and resistance to it illustrate the larger questions of how national cultural heritage is internationally constructed and how it serves states desire for international status and prestige An in depth and nuanced account of art restitution disputes The Art of Status illuminates the shifting political significance of art on the international stage from ownership to restitution
