Social Anthropology and Development Policy R. D. Grillo, Alan Rew, 1985 4e de couv In recent years there has been considerable interest among anthropologists throughout the world in the application of their discipline to policy questions The involvement of anthropologists in policy matters has a lengthy history especially during the colonial period and has always stimulated controversy and debate This volume arises from the 1983 ASA Conference which was a major review of the state of anthropology with special emphasis on newer developments in the field particularly in applied subjects It is a timely and valuable contribution to the debate about the social and cultural dimensions of policy planning The papers fall into three groups The first examines the role of the anthropologist in a variety of historical political contexts the second looks at what specifically the anthropologist can contribute to policy work the third attempts to spell out in more general terms what working in the applied field might mean for anthropologists and those who employ them as policy advisers

The Development of Religion, the Religion of Development Ananta Kumar Giri,Anton van Harskamp,Oscar Salemink,2004 Development is a key concept for thinking about the global relations between nations in particular between North and South But what exactly does it entail and in which forms do development practices manifest themselves Are we dealing with aid or with co operation or perhaps with encounter And which motives philosophies of life and ideas about the course of nations and other human communities are lurking behind the programs of actual development Why has the concept become so popular that it seems to have become a substitute for the concept of history Could it be that development programs which are usually rationally conceived evaluated and managed betray hegemonic practices despite the good intentions of donor nations and development agencies Or are development programs aiming at integration of the South into a global market If so could it be that the belief in development is some kind of a secular quasi religious view on the ways nations and people must develop We know after all that religion often is a motivating source for many people involved in development practices These questions are addressed in short essays by eminent experts in the fields of development studies cultural anthropology development policy and social philosophy They critically analyse the discourses used in development practices The ultimate focus of the essays is on the ways in which political and development agencies deal with morality religion and spirituality The authors come from Great Britain India Indonesia and the Netherlands This volume will be attractive to those working in the fields of development cooperation missionary work and faith based international solidarity Book jacket
