

The background of the slide is a photograph of a lecture hall. In the foreground, several rows of light-colored wooden chairs are visible, arranged in a tiered fashion. The chairs are empty. In the background, a dark, out-of-focus area suggests a stage or a screen. The overall lighting is soft and even.

Talks on Pedagogics Francis Wayland Parker, 1894 , Psychodynamic Perspectives on Working with Children, Families, and Schools Michael O'Loughlin, 2012-12-08

With the push toward accountability and test performance in schools, there has been a decline in emphasis on creativity, imagination, and feelings in schools. Psychodynamic Perspectives on Working with Children, Families, and Schools is designed for students and professionals who are interested in restoring such values to their work with children. There is an absence of psychoanalytic ways of thinking in conventional professional discourses of schooling. With a few notable exceptions, the discourses of child development, classroom management, early childhood education, special education, school psychology, and school counseling have constructed notions of children and schooling that are often behaviorist, instrumental, and symptom-focused. Curriculum too often focuses on acquisition of knowledge and behaviors; discipline is conceptualized as compliance; and symptoms such as anger, school resistance, etc. are pathologized and reacted to out of context. Children's special needs are often conceptualized instrumentally, and children with complex psychological symptoms are delimited, depersonalized, or simply removed. Professionals who work with children psychodynamically draw on diverse frameworks, including the work of Anna Freud, the long tradition of the Tavistock Clinic in London, e.g., Anne Alvarez, Susan Reid, Margaret Rustin, Frances Tustin, etc., the writings of Klein, Winnicott, and their colleagues; French analysts, e.g., Piera Aulagnier, Didier Anzieu, Laurent Danon-Boileau, Françoise Dolto, Maud Mannoni, and Catherine Mathelin; and Italian infant child analyst Alessandro Piontelli. This work is valuable but often inaccessible to school professionals because the writing is somewhat specialized and because there is no tradition of teaching such work in professional preparation in those fields. This collection is theoretically grounded in that the authors share a commitment to valuing children's emotions and understanding the usefulness of psychoanalytic approaches for enhancing children's lives. It is laden with examples to invite into this discussion those students and professionals who value these ideas but for whom this book may be their first introduction to progressive educational ideals and psychodynamic ways of working with children Psychodynamic Perspectives on Working with Children Families and Schools provides an introductory volume to open the door to the possibility of introducing psychodynamic frameworks to education and human service professors and school professionals and professionals working with children

The Messianic Character of American Education R. J. Rushdoony,2014-08-26 Rushdoony s study tells us an important part of American history exactly what has public education been trying to accomplish Before the 1830s and Horace Mann no schools in the U S were state supported or state controlled They were local parent teacher enterprises supported without taxes and taking care of all children They were remarkably high in standard and were Christian From Mann to the present the state has used education to socialize the child The school's basic purpose according to its own philosophers is not education in the traditional sense of the 3 R's Instead it is to promote democracy and equality not in their legal or civic sense but in terms of the engineering of a socialized citizenry Public education became the means of creating a social order of the educators' design Such men saw themselves and the school in messianic terms This book was instrumental in launching the Christian school and homeschool movements Appleton's Annual Cyclopædia and Register of Important Events of the Year, 1895 Writing and the Writer Frank Smith, 2013-11-05 Exploring the relationship between the writer and what he/she happens to be writing this text by one of the foremost scholars in the field of literacy and cognition is a unique and original examination of writing as a craft and as a cognitive activity The book is concerned with the physical activity of writing the way the nervous system recruits the muscles to move the pen or manipulate the typewriter It considers the necessary disciplines of writing such as knowledge of the conventions of grammar spelling and punctuation In particular there is a concern with how the skills underlying all these aspects of writing are learned and orchestrated This second edition includes many new insights from the author's significant experience and from recent research providing a framework for thinking about the act of writing in both theoretical and practical ways A completely new chapter on computers and writing is included as well as more about the role of reading in learning to write about learning to write at all ages and about such controversial issues as whether and how genre theory should be taught Written in nontechnical language this text will continue to be accessible and stimulating to a wide range of readers concerned with writing literacy thinking and education Furthermore it has an educational orientation therefore proving relevant and useful to anyone who teaches about writing or endeavors to teach writing Catalogue of the Pedagogical Library Philadelphia (Pa.). Public Education Board, 1907 I Learn from Children Caroline Pratt, 2014-06-16 The memoir of an innovative American educator and the remarkable school she built a lucid presentation of what progressive education can accomplish The New York Times Over a century ago American educator Caroline Pratt created an innovative school that fosters creativity and independent thought by asking the provocative question Was it unreasonable to try to fit the school to the child rather than the child to the school A strong-willed small-town schoolteacher who ran a one-room schoolhouse by the time she was seventeen Pratt came to viscerally reject the teaching methods of her day which often featured a long-winded teacher at the front of the room and rows of miserable children sitting on benches nailed to the floor In this persuasive presentation of progressive education Pratt recounts how she founded what is now the dynamic City and Country School in New York City invented the unit blocks that have become a staple in classrooms around the globe and played an important role in reimagining preschool and primary school education in ways that are essential for the tumultuously creative time we live in today Kirkus Reviews Starting with Whitehead Lynn Sargent De Jonghe, 2022-07-26 Parents and teachers want to give children the best opportunities for success in life But opinions may vary vehemently about the methods for accomplishing these aims Starting with Whitehead begins with the premise that today s children will need skills and values to live in a world of fast paced turbulent change creativity problem solving ability attitudes of life long learning emotional resilience and appreciation of different perspectives As we seek guidance on these issues we are led to the work of Alfred North Whitehead who brilliantly perceived that the process of change itself is fundamental to our existence how we experience ourselves and others and how we interact with the world around us In his classic work The Aims of Education he elaborated a three stage process of learning involving romance precision and generalization His vision of education calls for exploring real experiences rather than packing scraps of information into passive students This book offers examples of learning events at each stage that illustrate how adults can help children thrive in a world of change based on the author s experience working with children as a parent teacher principal and policy maker Drawing on seminal psychological and educational research De Jonghe sets these events in the context of a vigorous theoretical foundation and proposes specific strategies for success Her recommendations have relevance for parents teachers principals and policy makers The Hamilton Review ,1893 A History of Education in Modern Times Frank Pierrepont Graves,1914
