What We Know About CSCL Jan-Willem Strijbos, Paul A. Kirschner, Rob L. Martens, 2006-04-11 A Dutch policy scientist once said the information and knowledge in the twenty first century has the shelf life of fresh fish and learning in this age often means learning where and how to find something and how to relate it to a specific situation instead of knowing everything one needs to know On top of this the world has become so highly interconnected that we have come to realise that every decision that we make can have repercussions somewhere else To touch as many bases as possible we need to work with knowledgeable others from different fields multiple agents and take heed of their points of view multiple representations To do this we make increasing use of computers and computer mediated communication If computer supported collaborative learning CSCL is not simply a newly discovered hype in education what is it and why are we writing a book about it Dissecting the phrase into its constituent parts we see that first of all CSCL is about learning and in the twenty first century this usually means constructivist learning

Joint Utterance Construction in Japanese Conversation Makoto Hayashi, 2003 This book focuses on how participants in Japanese conversation negotiate and achieve joint courses of action within a single turn at talk Using the methodology of Conversation Analysis as a central framework this book describes in detail the structures and procedures used by Japanese speakers to jointly produce a coherent grammatical unit in progress and explores the range of social actions that speakers accomplish by employing that practice This study is part of a larger project intended to investigate how humans achieve intricate coordination of their behavior with that of co participants in everyday social encounters and how language plays a constitutive part in making such micro level social coordination possible Through a close examination of joint utterance construction in Japanese this book contributes to a growing body of research into the mutual influence between the grammatical organization of language and the organization of situated human conduct in social interaction

Cscl 2 Timothy Koschmann, Rogers P. Hall, Naomi Miyake, 2013-05-13 CSCL 2 Carrying Forward the Conversation is a thorough and up to date survey of recent developments in Computer Supported Collaborative Learning one of the fastest growing areas of research in the learning sciences A follow up to CSCL Theory and Practice of an Emerging Paradigm 1996 this volume both documents how the field has grown and fosters a meaningful discussion of how the research program might be advanced in substantive ways Recognizing the long standing traditions of CSCL work in Europe and Japan the editors sought to broaden and expand the conversation both geographically and topically The 45 participating authors represent a range of disciplinary backgrounds including anthropology communication studies computer science education psychology and philosophy and offer international perspectives on the field For each chapter the goal was not only to show how it connects to past and future work in CSCL but also how it contributes to the interests of other research communities Toward this end the volume features a conversational structure consisting of target chapters invited commentaries and author responses The commentaries on each chapter were solicited from a diverse collection of writers including prominent scholars in anthropology of education social studies of science CSCW argumentation activity theory language and social interaction ecological psychology and other areas The volume is divided into three sections Part I explores four case studies of technology transfer involving CSILE one of the most prominent CSCL projects Part II focuses on empirical studies of learning in collaborative settings Part III describes novel CSCL technologies and the theories underlying their design Historically there has been a certain amount of controversy as to what the second C in CSCL should represent The conventional meaning is collaborative but there are many C words that can be seen as relevant With the publication of this volume conversational might be added to the list and in this spirit the book might be viewed as an invitation to join a conversation in progress and to carry it forward

Classroom Nonverbal Communication Sean Neill, 2017-09-29 Nonverbal signals are less easily controlled than words and thus potentially offer reliable information to both teachers and children on each other's true intentions But such signals are also more ambiguous than words and this makes them valuable when teachers or children wish to send a message they do not want to be challenged Even so misunderstandings can occur for example between different ethnic groups Originally published in 1991 Sean Neill explores how children's skill in using and understanding nonverbal signals increases with age The appropriate nonverbal signals for teachers differ from those used in informal conversation because of the teacher's controlling instructing and encouraging role and this creates problems for new teachers who also find it difficult to interpret the limited feedback from the class A detailed coverage of teachers and children's signals leads on to a survey of how teachers acquire nonverbal skills and research on effective training Classroom Nonverbal Communication provides the only comprehensive survey of these areas for staff involved in the initial and in-service training of teachers and in staff development Classroom social arrangements are permanently reflected in seating layout and room design which can allow teachers and administrators to influence classroom interaction through advance planning For these groups this richly illustrated volume assesses how effective such planning really is Sean Neill has researched room layout and nonverbal communication in education since 1975 and has published many papers dealing with these issues He provides a uniquely comprehensive survey of the research evidence on classroom nonverbal communication
