Multicultural Families, Home Literacies, and Mainstream Schooling Guofang

Li, 2009-02-01 Lack of knowledge about immigrant and minority students learning outside school has contributed to the difficulties educators encounter when trying to embrace cultural diversity. Many educators do not have the knowledge base about immigrant and minority children's culturally specific ways of learning in nonschool settings. Given the changing cultural landscapes in today's schools, we have an imperative to develop more situated understandings of immigrant and minority children's literacy learning experiences embedded in the social and cultural fabrics of their everyday lives outside school. This volume of research meets this important need in the field. It not only focuses on the complexity of literacy learning in diverse home contexts but also examines how literacy is practiced and lived in multiple ways within families of various backgrounds including those of Asian, African, and African American, Hispanic, White, European, and mixed heritages. In addition, it explores how these various culturally embedded home practices will inform school education and policy making in a larger socio-political context. The book makes an original and significant contribution to the fields of literacy education and school-home and community partnerships. Since immigrant and minority families' literacy activities and the cultural contexts of their practices at home are not readily accessible to school personnel, program developers, policy makers, or even researchers and educators, this book will serve as an important resource for teachers, practitioners, undergraduate and graduate students, teacher educators, and university researchers who are in the fields of literacy education, family literacy, and new literacy studies, minority and/or immigrant education, and second language education.

Aspects of the Dialogical Self Marie-Cécile Bertau, 2004-01-01 Aspects of the Dialogical Self is at the core a documentation of the outcome of a symposium held at the Second International Conference on the Dialogical Self 2002. Starting from a psycholinguistic and socio-cultural approach, its aim was to present several perspectives on the phenomenon of inner speech on the borders of communication and cognition and of individual and social performances. The symposium was concerned with the concept of development in different respects in regard to the relation between inner speech and literacy. Juan Daniel Ramirez to questions and their special role for the dialogical self, Marie-Cécile Bertau, and to the role of mutuality in psychological growth. Vera John Steiner. The contributions are each followed by comments, thereby conveying some orality and voicedness. This core is surrounded by an introductory part depicting the theory of the dialogical self, accompanied by a proposition on modeling. Marie-Cécile Bertau, and by an additional topic which is a quite important and complex issue for the dialogical self: addressivity. The first contribution tries to open up the horizon in which addressivity could be placed, departing from philosophical considerations going via conversational analysis to developmental aspects. Marie-Cécile Bertau. This general approach is supplied by two contributions dealing with specific moments of addressivity: the first one focuses on the special cases of open states of talk, faked multiple addressing, and self-talk. Heike Baldauf-Quillatre. The second contribution, Marta Soler Gallart, could well be read as a complement to Ramirez's article since it deals with dialogical reading, stating the transformative force of addressing. Thus, the book offers specific as well as general vistas of the dialogical self and of related questions such as ontogenetic and microgenetic development and conceptions of addressivity      An Introduction to Discourse Analysis James Paul Gee, 2005 Assuming no prior knowledge of linguistics the author presents both a theory of language in use a method of research This new edition has been completely revised with substantial new material fully updated references      Inner Speech - L2 Maria C.M. de Guerrero, 2006-03-30 According to Vygotsky 1986 The decreasing vocalization of egocentric speech denotes a developing abstraction from sound the child's new faculty to think words instead of pronouncing them This is the positive meaning of the sinking coefficient of egocentric speech The downward curve indicates development toward inner speech p 230 The purpose of this volume is to explore the faculty to think words not as the ability to mentally evoke words in the native or first language L1 but as the faculty 1 to conjure up in the mind words in a second language L2 To think words rather than to pronounce them is possible through inner speech a function that humans develop in the course of childhood as they internalize the speech of the social group among which they grow This means internalizing and being able to conduct inner speech in a particular linguistic code the L1 But humans at a very early or more mature age may also come into contact and interact verbally with speakers of other languages in classrooms or natural settings The possibility thus emerges of internalizing an L2 in such a way that inner speech in the L2 might evolve In this book it is argued that given certain conditions of L2 learning it is possible for learners to attain inner speech in the L2 This book examines the distinctive nature of L2 inner speech and the processes that engender it and characterize its development
