Strategies for Protection and Management of Floodplain Wetlands and Other Riparian Ecosystems Raymond Roy Johnson, United States. Forest Service, 1979 Stealing the Gila David H. DeJong, 2016-12-01 By 1850 the Pima Indians of central Arizona had developed a strong and sustainable agricultural economy based on irrigation As David H DeJong demonstrates the Pima were an economic force in the mid nineteenth century middle Gila River valley producing food and fiber crops for western military expeditions and immigrants Moreover crops from their fields provided an additional source of food for the Mexican military presidio in Tucson as well as the U S mining districts centered near Prescott For a brief period of about three decades the Pima were on an equal economic footing with their non Indian neighbors This economic vitality did not last however As immigrants settled upstream from the Pima villages they deprived the Indians of the water they needed to sustain their economy DeJong traces federal territorial and state policies that ignored Pima water rights even though some policies appeared to encourage Indian agriculture This is a particularly egregious example of a common story in the West the flagrant local rejection of Supreme Court rulings that protected Indian water rights With plentiful maps tables and illustrations DeJong demonstrates that maintaining the spreading farms and growing towns of the increasingly white population led Congress and other government agencies to willfully deny Pimas their water rights Had their rights been protected DeJong argues Pimas would have had an economy rivaling the local and national economies of the time Instead of succeeding the Pima were reduced to cycles of poverty their lives destroyed by greed and disrespect for the law as well as legal decisions made for personal gain Water-resources Investigations Report , 1992 Tres Rios Feasibility Study , 2000 The Taming of the Salt Edward H. The Force of Custom Judith Beyer, 2016-12-16 Judith Beyer presents a finely textured ethnographic study that sheds new light on the legal and moral ordering of everyday life in northwestern Kyrgyzstan Through her extensive fieldwork Beyer captures the thoughts and voices of local people in two villages Aral and Engels and combines these with firsthand observations to create an original ethnography Beyer shows how local Kyrgyz negotiate proper behavior and regulate disputes by invoking custom known to the locals as salt While salt is presented as age old tradition its invocation needs to be understood as a highly developed and flexible rhetorical strategy that people adapt to suit the political legal economic and religious environments Officially codified state law should take precedence when it comes to dispute resolution yet the unwritten laws of salt and the increasing importance of Islamic law provide the standards for ordering everyday life As Beyer further reveals interpretations of both Islamic and state law are also intrinsically linked to salt By interweaving case studies on kinship legal negotiations festive events mourning rituals and political and business dealings Beyer shows how salt is the binding element in rural Kyrgyz social life used to explain and negotiate moral behavior and to postulate communal identity In this way salt provides a time tested sustainable source of authentication that defies changes in government and the tides of religious movements Beyer s ground level analysis provides a broad base of knowledge that will be valuable for students and researchers of contemporary Central Asia
