A prominent tall, cylindrical structure, possibly a lighthouse or monument, stands out among the buildings. The harbor is filled with water, and a large cargo ship is visible in the lower right. The sky is clear and blue.

Race, Nation, and Citizenship in Postcolonial Africa Ronald Aminzade, 2013-10-31 Nationalism has generated violence, bloodshed, and genocide, as well as patriotic sentiments that encourage people to help fellow citizens and place public responsibilities above personal interests. This study explores the contradictory character of African nationalism as it unfolded over decades of Tanzanian history in conflicts over public policies concerning the rights of citizens, foreigners, and the nation's Asian racial minority. These policy debates reflected a history of racial oppression and foreign domination and were shaped by a quest for economic development, racial justice, and national self-reliance.

Colonial Justice and Decolonization in the High Court of Tanzania, 1920-1971 Ellen R. Feingold, 2018-02-09 This book is the first study of the development and decolonization of a British colonial high court in Africa. It traces the history of the High Court of Tanzania from its establishment in 1920 to the end of its institutional process of decolonization in 1971. This process involved disentangling the High Court from colonial state structures and imperial systems that were built on racial inequality while simultaneously increasing the independence of the judiciary and application of British judicial principles. Feingold weaves together the rich history of the Court with a discussion of its judges both as members of the British Colonial Legal Service and as individuals to explore the impacts and intersections of imperial policies, national politics, and individual initiative. Colonial Justice and Decolonization in the High Court of Tanzania is a powerful reminder of the crucial roles played by common law courts in the operation and legitimization of both colonial and post-colonial states.

Generations Past Andrew Burton, H  l  ne Charton-Bigot, 2010-09-15 Contemporary Africa is demographically characterized above all else by its youthfulness. In East Africa, the median age of the population is now a striking 17.5 years, and more than 65 percent of the population is age 24 or under. This situation has attracted growing scholarly attention, resulting in an important and rapidly expanding literature on the position of youth in African societies. While the scholarship examining the contemporary role of youth in African societies is rich and growing, the historical dimension has been largely neglected in the literature thus far. Generations Past seeks to address this gap through a wide-ranging selection of essays that covers an array of youth-related themes in historical perspective. Thirteen chapters explore the historical dimensions of youth in nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first century Ugandan, Tanzanian, and Kenyan societies. Key themes running through the book include the analytical utility of youth as a social category, intergenerational relations, and the passage of time, youth as a social and political problem, sex and gender roles among East African youth, and youth as historical agents of change. The strong list of contributors includes prominent scholars of the region and the collection encompasses a good geographical spread of all three East African countries

Elites and Decolonization in the Twentieth Century Jost Dülffer, Marc Frey, 2011-04-05 Decolonization changed the spatial order of the globe the imagination of men and women around the world and established images of the globe Both individuals and social groups shaped decolonization itself this volume puts agency squarely at the centre of debate by looking at elites and leaders who changed the course of history across the world

Building a Peaceful Nation Paul Bjerck, 2015 A compelling account of the establishment of Tanzania's stable and ambitious government in the face of external threats and internal turmoil

Taifa James R. Brennan, 2012-05-29 Taifa is a story of African intellectual agency but it is also an account of how nation and race emerged out of the legal social and economic histories in one major city Dar es Salaam Nation and race both translatable as taifa in Swahili were not simply universal ideas brought to Africa by European colonizers as previous studies assume They were instead categories crafted by local African thinkers to make sense of deep inequalities particularly those between local Africans and Indian immigrants Taifa shows how nation and race became the key political categories to guide colonial and postcolonial life in this African city Using deeply researched archival and oral evidence Taifa transforms our understanding of urban history and shows how concerns about access to credit and housing became intertwined with changing conceptions of nation and nationhood Taifa gives equal attention to both Indians and Africans in doing so it demonstrates the significance of political and economic connections between coastal East Africa and India during the era of British colonialism and illustrates how the project of racial nationalism largely severed these connections by the 1970s

Fighting for Britain David Killingray, 2012 Based mainly on oral evidence and soldiers letters tells the story of over half a million African troops who served with the British Army in campaigns in the Horn of Africa the Middle East Italy and Burma Looks at the impact of army life and travel on the men and their families and the role of ex servicemen in post war nationalist politics
