Cross Generational Relationships and Cinema Joel Gwynne,Niall Richardson,2020-07-21 Depictions of cross generational relationships have always been present in popular cinema While such relationships have historically operated within the framework of heteronormativity and have usually explored cross generational romance in the context of older men younger women contemporary depictions have expanded to focus also on taboo configurations of love between older women and younger men and cross generational LGBT coupledness Contemporary depictions have sought to complicate not only heteronormativity in cross generational relationships but also to navigate the differences between socially acceptable love and transgressive desire This collection focuses on the changing values and attitudes of cross generational relationships and addresses the often divisive relationship between the discourses of youth and ageing in popular culture

Feeding, Bonding, and the Formation of Social Relationships Leberecht Funk,Gabriel Scheidecker,Bambi L. Chapin,Wiebke J. Schmidt,Christine El Ouardani,Nandita Chaudhary,2023-08-17 This Element explores multi faceted linkages between feeding and relationship formation based on ethnographic case studies in Morocco Madagascar Sri Lanka Taiwan and Costa Rica Research demonstrates that there are many culturally valued ways of feeding children contradicting the idea of a single universally optimal feeding standard It demonstrates further that in many parts of the world feeding plays a central role in bonding and relationship formation something largely overlooked in current developmental theories Analysis shows that feeding contributes to relationship formation through what we call proximal transactional and distal dimensions This Element argues that feeding practices can lead to qualitatively distinct forms of relationships It has important theoretical and practical implications calling for the expansion of attachment theory to include feeding and body centered caregiving and significant changes to global interventions currently based on responsive feeding This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core
