Mahratta Tale Philip Meadows Taylor, 2020-09-28 The promise of the child was more than fulfilled in the girl now budding into early womanhood and her appearance was so remarkable that while many of her old friends in the bazaar now rarely ventured to accost her and even turned aside their heads reverently as she passed she could not traverse the crowded street which led from her house to the temple or indeed move anywhere during the day without attracting admiration from the crowds of strangers who from all parts of India visited that renowned shrine of which her father was the chief priest and manager Many a pilgrim and worshipper gazed wonderingly upon the calm gentle face which met him at the earliest dawn in its devotional perambulation round the temple or followed with his eye the graceful figure which carrying the daily sacrificial offerings descended the flights of steps by which the shrine was approached and far away in his native village under the snows of Himalaya the burning sands of Ram shwur or the green plains of Bengal told of the beautiful vision and never forgot it Tara has been up since before the false dawn She has assisted her father with water to bathe and in his private worship of the household gods She has bathed herself and is now dressed in the simple saree or robe of all Hindu females It is of dark blue silk striped with a fainter blue and has a broad border of a light but rich pattern harmonizing with the colours of the garment which consisting of one long piece only is wound round her several times to form a skirt then passed about her body and over her head on the left side whence the end which is of rich gold tissue interwoven with crimson flowers and green leaves hangs heavily over her right shoulder and back Below the garment is a closely fitting bodice of striped orange silk only but no portion of it is visible except a little of the sleeve above the elbow Tara is holding the border of her dress close to her cheek as if to conceal it even from her mother and the graceful outline of her arm may be followed from the tips of the taper fingers past the wrist partly covered with purple bangles and a massive gold ring along the soft round arm to the dimpled elbow whence it is lost among the folds of the saree which falls over it Tara a Mahratta Tale Philip Meadows

Taylor, 2023-01-17 Tara A Mahratta Tale by Meadows Taylor is an attempt to bring the interior Hindoo and Mussulman life of a great Mahratta province during the most exciting times home to the hearts and understandings of Englishmen to interest them in people with whom they have nothing except human nature in common The Times For its rapid action in fact we have seldom read a better story or one which is more full of incidents sanguinary trenchant and robust The Daily Telegraph A true and a wonderfully well sustained piece of Oriental life and striking history Tara Meadows Taylor, 2013-10 This is a reproduction of a book published before 1923 This book may have occasional imperfections such as missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc that were either part of the original artifact or were introduced by the scanning process We believe this work is culturally important and despite the imperfections have elected to bring it back into print as part of our continuing commitment to the preservation of printed works worldwide We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections in the preservation process and hope you enjoy this valuable book Tara Meadows Taylor, 1863 Tara

Tara Meadows Taylor,2013-10 Tara Philip Meadows Taylor,2017-02-22 The Times For its rapid action in fact we have seldom read a better story or one which is more full of incidents sanguinary trenchant and robust The Daily Telegraph A true and a wonderfully well sustained piece of Oriental life and striking history The Spectator This is a very remarkable book It is a determined attempt to bring the interior Hindoo and Mussulman life of a great Mahratta province during the most exciting times home to the hearts and understandings of Englishmen to interest them in people with whom they have nothing except human nature in common Morning Post Tara is a unique work There is nothing like it in the English literature of fiction No other writer has ever attempted the portrayal of Indian life society and interests entirely free from any European admixture of character or incident The author himself now does so for the first time The Confessions of a Thug related to British jurisdiction in India Tippoo Sultan dealt with the gallant struggles of that monarch against the encroaching British power but Tara is all Indian Saturday Review It is seldom that we meet with a work of fiction executed with anything like the conscientious care and minute elaboration of Captain Meadows Taylor s Indian Tale His characters have mostly the clearness and individuality of portraits and his scenery exhibits all the marked and decisive features of photographs taken on the spot The work throughout is evidently that of a master of Oriental life and character in love with his subject to whom nothing appears trivial or beneath notice that can illustrate the peculiar traits of Asiatic nature or kindle an enthusiasm for knowing more of the history manners and usages of our fellow subjects in the east The Standard In no one part of the work has Captain Taylor shown more thorough art than in those pages in which he details the features of the Hindoo and Mahomedan family life He never overloads his characters are not lay figures attired in triple folds of gorgeous robes to hide their nakedness With a few subtle touches he shows us the interior life of each household and the morning springs of every character and he leaves us to fill in the obvious details for ourselves My Lord The scenes and characters which i have endeavoured to depict in these volumes will be necessarily new and strange to you but if they excite interest in the native annals of a country of which i find but little real knowledge existing the object of the work will have been attained while by the kind courtesy which permits me to dedicate it to you your excellency confers upon me a very sincere gratification I have
