emerging area of basic and clinical research and has only recently been recognized as a major topic in biomedical research. Approximately 1 in 150 children are diagnosed as autistic so it is also an intense growth area in behavioral and educational treatments. Financial resources have begun to be raised for more comprehensive research and an increasing number of scientists are becoming involved in autism research. In many respects, autism has become a model for conducting translational research on a psychiatric disorder. This text provides a comprehensive summary of all current knowledge related to the behavioral, experiential, and biomedical features of the autism spectrum disorders, including major behavioral and cognitive syndromology, common comorbid conditions, neuropathology, neuroimmunology, and other neurological correlates such as seizures, allergy, and immunology, gastroenterology, infectious disease, and epidemiology. Edited by three leading researchers, this volume contains over 80 chapters and nine shorter commentaries by thought leaders in the field, making the book a virtual who's who of autism research. This carefully developed book is a comprehensive and authoritative reference for what we know in this area as well as a guidepost for the next several years in all areas of autism research.

Interventions for Autism Spectrum Disorders Sam Goldstein, Jack A. Naglieri, 2013-02-03. Children are being diagnosed with autism spectrum disorders at a staggering rate as many as one in 110 according to some studies. To this sobering statistic, add the familiar figures of the toddler disengaged from his peers, the middle schooler shunned in the lunchroom, and the adult struggling with social cues on the job, and professionals are faced with a mounting challenge to assist and support young people with these disorders to ensure their successful transition to adolescence and adulthood. The first volume dedicated solely to its topic, Interventions for Autism Spectrum Disorders, provides a comprehensive overview of programs currently in use. Contributors explore programs focusing on long-term outcomes, home and classroom-based strategies, resilience training for parents, and pharmacological management of symptoms. Background chapters review issues in reliability and validity of interventions and evaluating treatment effectiveness. And an especially cogent chapter discusses the centrality of treatment integrity to best practice. Comprehensive programs and targeted interventions covered include The Early Start Denver Model for young children, The TEACCH program for children, adults, and families, The Center for Autism and Related Disorders (CARD) and CARD eLearning, PROGRESS, a program for remediating and expanding social skills, evidence-based strategies for repetitive behaviors and sensory issues, self-regulation strategies for students with autism spectrum disorders. Interventions for Autism Spectrum Disorders is an essential resource for researchers, professionals, practitioners, and clinicians in a wide array of fields including clinical child, school, and developmental psychology, child and adolescent psychiatry, education, rehabilitation medicine, therapy, social work, and pediatrics. Autism Patricia Howlin, 2004-08-02. Autism is a life-long, often devastating disorder that profoundly affects almost every aspect of an individual's functioning. Impairments in communication limit the ability to understand what is happening or why and make it almost impossible to effectively control events or people or the environment. Autism: Preparing for Adulthood focuses on adults with autism and their families By using information from research studies and treatment programmes it provides a practical resource for parents carers and autistic people themselves Autism Preparing for Adulthood discusses the problems and the solutions related to educational and occupational attainments ways of coping with psychiatric and other difficulties and how to foster independence in later life The focus is not on cures or miracles but on the improvement in the quality of life for all concerned It is essential reading for professionals in training and practice in special needs speech and language therapy social workers social services personnel psychiatrists psychologists paediatricians young adults with autism their families and carers
