W. Lid, 2023-04-28 Ford Madox Ford The Essence of His Art offers an insightful examination of the literary life and achievements of Ford Madox Ford one of the most intriguing and complex figures in early 20th century English literature Known for his innovative narrative techniques Ford is best remembered for his masterpieces The Good Soldier and Parade's End. This study highlights Ford's distinctive style focusing particularly on his use of the time shift technique which rearranges events in the narrator's memory and his ability to evoke psychological tension and social commentary through fragmented narrative structures. Ford's writing navigates the transition from Victorian to modern sensibilities exploring themes of passion, duty, and the social upheavals of his time. By delving into his works, the study offers a deeper understanding of Ford's pivotal role in the development of the modern novel, blending the emotional complexity of his characters with a keen critique of society. The book also provides a rich biographical context detailing Ford's early life within the artistic circles of the Pre-Raphaelites and his literary struggles. It examines his relationships with literary giants like Joseph Conrad and Henry James whose influence can be traced in Ford's own works. The author's introspective approach to writing, his search for identity, and his exploration of personal and societal conflicts through fiction are key themes in this study. The narrative of Ford's life is punctuated by moments of literary innovation and personal turmoil, capturing the essence of his journey as an artist, editor, and mentor. Through a combination of personal reminiscences and literary analysis, this book presents Ford as both a product of his time and a visionary who pushed the boundaries of narrative form to reflect the complexities of the human condition. This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice, reach, and impact. Ford Madox Ford and Englishness, 2006-01-01. The controversial British writer Ford Madox Ford (1873-1939) is increasingly recognized as a major presence in early twentieth-century literature. International Ford Madox Ford Studies has been founded to reflect the recent resurgence of interest in him. Each volume is based upon a particular theme or issue; each will relate aspects of Ford's work, life, and contacts to broader concerns of his time. Ford is best known for his fiction, especially The Good Soldier, long considered a modernist masterpiece, and Parade's End, which Anthony Burgess described as the finest novel about the First World War, and Samuel Hynes has called the greatest war novel ever written by an Englishman. These works, together with his trilogy The Fifth Queen about Henry VIII and Katharine Howard, are centrally concerned with the idea of Englishness. All these and other works across Ford's prolific oeuvre are studied here. Critics of Edwardian and Modernist literature have been increasingly turning to Ford's brilliant 1905 experiment in Impressionism, The Soul of London, as an exemplary text. His trilogy England and the English, of which this forms the first part, provides a central reference point for this volume, which presents Ford as a key contributor to Edwardian debates about the Condition of England. His complex, ironic attitude to Englishness makes his approach stand out from contemporary anxieties about race and degeneration, and anticipate the recent reconsideration of Englishness in response to post-colonialism, multiculturalism, globalization, devolution, and the expansion and development of the European Community. Ford's apprehension of the major social transformations of his age lets us read him as a precursor to cultural studies He considered mass culture and its relation to literary traditions decades before writers like George Orwell the Leavises or Raymond Williams The present book initiates a substantial reassessment to be continued in future volumes in the series of Ford s responses to these cultural transformations his contacts with other writers and his phases of activity as an editor working to transform modern literature From another point of view the essays here also develop the project established in earlier volumes of reappraising Ford s engagement with the city history and modernity
