Britain claimed intimate knowledge of everyday life among the poor and working class at home and non white subjects abroad They mobilized their knowledge in a wide range of media from accounts of local happenings in their schools official log books to travel narratives based on summer trips around Britain and the wider world Teachers also obsessively narrated and reflected on their own careers Through these stories and the work they did every day teachers imagined and helped to enact new models of professionalism attitudes towards poverty and social mobility ways of thinking about race and empire and roles for the state As highly visible agents of the state and beneficiaries of new state funded opportunities teachers also represented the largesse and the reach of the liberal state but also the limits of both

Sex and Suffrage in Britain, 1860-1914 Susan Kingsley Kent, 2014-07-14 Although other historians have viewed the suffrage movement as aimed at exclusively political ends she argues that such a categorization ignores many of the most compelling reasons why thousands of middle and upper class women risked ostracism obloquy and often physical harm in the pursuit of the right to vote and why their efforts met with such intense opposition The alliance of respectable middle class women with prostitutes the attack on marriage and the suffragists distrust of the medical profession are among the topics the author addresses Drawing on hypotheses advanced by Michel Foucault she asserts that feminists sought no less than the total transformation of the lives of women Originally published in 1987 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

The Making of Modern English Society from 1850 Janet Roebuck, 1982 In the second half of the nineteenth century and the first half of the twentieth century a variety of forces emerged which changed society in many profound and subtle ways The Making of Modern English Society from 1850 uses the findings of recent historical and sociological research contemporary literature and a wide range of historical sources to form a clear picture of the main patterns of the social changes which took place in this turbulent period Jane Roebuck shows how in these hundred years the whole fabric of society altered more rapidly and radically than in any preceding century She gives an account of the dramatic change which occurred in all spheres of national life She demonstrates how the drift towards socialism which began in the nineteenth century gathered momentum in the twentieth and how massive social change was produced by the two world wars In the field of economics the author considers the development of the maturing but still primitive industrial economy of the mid nineteenth century into a modern economy based on mass production and mass consumption She also describes the change in emphasis from desire for world power to concern for domestic prosperity and welfare services Political Movements in Urban England, 1832-1914 Matthew Roberts,2008-12-16 A critical introduction to the mass political movements that came of age in urban England between the Great Reform Act of 1832 and the start of World War One Roberts provides a guide to the new approaches to topics such as Chartism parliamentary reform Gladstonian Liberalism popular Conservatism and the independent Labour movement

Nationhood Sabine Clemm,2010-04-15 Dickens Journalism and Nationhood examines Charles Dickens weekly family magazine Household Words in order to develop a detailed picture of how the journal negotiated asserted and simultaneously deconstructed Englishness as a unified and sometimes unifying mode of expression It offers close readings of a wide range of materials that self consciously focus on the nature of England as well as the relationship between Britain and the European continent Ireland and the British colonies Starting with the representation and classification of identities that took place within the framework of the Great Exhibition of 1851 it suggests that the journal strives for a model of the world in concentric circles spiraling outward from the metropolitan center of London Despite this apparent orderliness however each of the national or regional categories constructed by the journal also resists and undermines such a clear cut representation
