

New Technology Changes Warfare

The Civil War revolutionized warfare. On water, new warships steamed into battle encased in thick armor plating. On land, the minie ball and the repeating rifle greatly improved soldiers' accuracy and firepower in battle. These changes resulted in staggering numbers of casualties on both sides. As the conflict dragged on, military commanders were forced to change their strategies to account for the deadly impact of new technology.

▼ Cone-shaped minie balls were accurate at much greater ranges than round bullets.

▲ This Henry repeating rifle could be fired 16 times before reloading.

▼ Most Civil War troops were arranged into tightly packed formations prior to marching against an enemy position. New firearms and ammunition exacted a gruesome toll on the massed attackers.

▲ Wooden ships were no match for ironclads like the Confederate Virginia and the Union Monitor.

▲ As casualties mounted, soldiers adapted their tactics and dug trenches for cover from enemy fire.

Thinking Critically

1. Compare and Contrast How did Civil War technology differ from earlier military technology?
2. Draw Conclusions How might future military tactics change because of lessons learned during the Civil War?
