Direction of increasing complexity and improved vision, which is closely associated with evolution.

"Some species evolved specialized eyes which are well adapted to their environment."

The Evolution of VISION

All eyes, despite their wonderful variety across lifeforms, come from a history of shared genes. Studying these genes has uncovered a roadmap to understanding how eye complexity has changed throughout history.

Light is the information we process in order to see. Light energy has primary colors in the eye, which are converted into secondary colors and then to the brain.

Primary colors: red, green, blue. Secondary colors: yellow, cyan, magenta.

TO THE FUTURE

The evolution of compound eyes is a lot more complicated. They do not necessarily display increasing visual acuity, since their structure and number are different than those of the human eye.
