The Economics Of Commodity Promotion Programs Lessons From California:

The Economics of Commodity Promotion Programs Harry Mason Kaiser, 2005 Mandated agricultural commodity promotion programs such as Got Milk are highly visible economically important and controversial In recent years these programs have spent more than 1 billion on generic commodity promotion They are authorized by producer referenda and funded using mandatory commodity taxes on producers and or handlers These programs have been the subject of much dispute and litigation especially in California which is home to a large number of them This book takes a comprehensive look at the economic consequences and the resulting legal implications of commodity promotion programs in California and distills the key consequences for similar programs on a national scale

The Economics of Livestock Disease Insurance

Stephen R. Koontz, 2006 This book on the economics of livestock disease insurance is organized into three major parts Following an introduction chapters 1 2 part II chapters 3 8 includes a variety of discussions about what is known about how to build a livestock insurance programme It begins with a look at the conceptual basis for government involvement in the management of livestock diseases including prevention control regulation and eradication This discussion is picked up by looking at incentive compatibility and insurability conditions in the private sector emphasizing how livestock disease management is unique Compensation is also examined including what losses should be compensated choosing a method to value the losses determining the portion of losses to compensate and outlining a potential role for insurance Finally the complexity of the risks at the farm level is demonstrated using a model that evaluates revenue insurance Part III chapters 9 20 offers a diverse discussion about disease management issues and programmes in Australia Canada Europe and the USA These chapters include more discussion about how to build economically sound insurance programmes and observations are based on modelling or observing case studies The book has a subject index

US Programs Affecting Food and Agricultural Marketing Walter J. Armbruster, Ronald D. Knutson, 2012-11-06 With increasing globalization of markets a wider array of programs has come to affect the food and agricultural marketing system and many of today's programs are more consumer oriented than producer oriented This book brings together the thinking of the best researchers addressing the topics involved in these programs and provides readily understood analyses of the challenges and opportunities facing the food and agricultural industry and the programs which impact industry performance Many public sector programs and institutions affecting food and agricultural marketing were designed in the early and mid 1900s and while they have been updated new demands are constantly being placed on them The authors discuss the increased scope complexity and globalization of markets the changes in technology that brought these changes about and the need for policy and program adjustments They also discuss the development of supply chains domestically and globally from farm to consumption The book addresses the safety of the food supply from both domestic and international sources and the need to assure security of the food supply from external events while maintaining trade and open markets The breadth of programs treated makes this book valuable to students and scholars in agricultural economics and agribusiness management as well as to practitioners and policy makers in the field

The Economics of Intellectual Property.
