Climate Change Law in China in Global Context Xiangbai He, Hao Zhang, Alexander Zahar, 2020-05-31 In Climate Change Law in China in Global Context seven climate change law scholars explain how the country's legal system is gradually being mobilized to support the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions in China and achieve adaptation to climate change There has been little English scholarship on the legal regime for climate change in China This volume addresses this gap in the literature and focuses on recent attempts by the country to build defences against the impacts of climate change and to meet the country's international obligations on mitigation The authors are not only interested in China's laws on paper rather the book explains how these laws are implemented and integrated in practice and sheds light on China's current laws laws in preparation the changing standing of law relative to policy and the further reforms that will be necessary in response to the 2015 Paris Agreement on Climate Change This comprehensive and critical account of the Chinese legal system's response to the pressures of climate change will be an important resource for scholars of international law environmental law and Chinese law

World Development Report, 1992 This is the fifteenth in the annual series assessing major development issues The World Development Report 1992 explores the links between economic development and the environment The 1990 report on poverty last year's report on development strategies and this report constitute a trilogy on the goals and means of development The main message of this year's report is the need to integrate environmental considerations into development policymaking The report argues that continued and even accelerated economic and human development is sustainable and can be consistent with improving environmental conditions but that this will require major policy program and institutional shifts A twofold strategy is required First the positive links between efficient income growth and the environment need to be aggressively exploited Second strong policies and institutions need to be put in place which cause decision makers to adopt less damaging forms of behavior Where tradeoffs exist between income growth and environmental quality the report argues for a careful assessment of the costs and benefits of alternative policies This approach will result in much less environmental damage Like its predecessors this report includes the World Development Indicators which offer selected social and economic statistics on 125 countries
