The Ecology Of A Tropical Forest Seasonal Rhythms And Long Term Changes:

The Ecology of a Tropical Forest Egbert Giles Leigh, 1983 ECOL TROPICAL FOREST, 1986-01-17 ECOL TROPICAL FOREST Egbert Giles Leigh, 1982 Summarizes research from the tropical forest on Barro Colorado Island Panama with sections on the physical and biotic settings frugivores insects and their predators litter arthropods and their predators and long term changes First published in 1982 this edition contains an afterword summarizing findings of the last 15 years in areas such as plant physiology the dynamics and diversity of the tropical forest and the ecological implications of mutualism No index Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR The ecology of a tropical forest : seasonal rhythms and longterm changes Egbert Giles Leigh, 1981 , Potential Impacts of Climate Change on Tropical Forest Ecosystems Adam Markham, 2013-11-11 Climate change represents one of the most alarming long term threats to ecosystems the world over This new collection of papers provides for the first time an overview of the potentially serious impact that climate change may have on tropical forests The authors a multi disciplinary group of leading experts in climatology forestry ecology and conservation biology present a state of knowledge snapshot of how tropical forests are likely to react to the changes being wrought on our planet s atmosphere and climate Tropical forests represent extraordinary harbours for biological diversity and yet as deforestation and degradation continue apace they are under greater pressure from human impacts than ever before Climate change adds yet another threat to these valuable ecosystems and this volume demonstrates just how significant a problem this may really be The authors identify certain types of forest including tropical montane cloud forest that may be particularly vulnerable They also show the strong likelihood of global warming aggravating problems in already fragmented forest areas Processes of Vegetation Change C.J. Burrows, 2012-12-06 This book is about ideas on the nature and causes of temporal change in the species composition of vegetation In particular it examines the diverse processes of inter action of plants with their environment and with one another through which the species composition of vegetation becomes established The first chapter considers the general nature of vegetation and the ways in which vegetation change is perceived by ecologists Chapters 2 and 3 provide essential background about the relationships between plants and their abiotic and biotic environment Anyone who is familiar with the fundamentals of plant ecology may prefer to pass over Chapters 2 and 3 which of necessity cover their subject matter very briefly Sequences of development of vegetation on new volcanic rocks sand dunes and glacial deposits respectively are outlined in Chapters 4 5 and 6 Chapter 7 is about the patterns of vegetation change which occur in severe habitats around the world and Chapter 8 discusses wetlands Chapter 9 discusses the diverse responses of temperate forests to a variety of disturbing influences and Chapter 10 deals with change in the species rich forests of the Tropics Chapter 11 treats in detail the empirical and inferential data on the biological processes occurring during vegetation change sequences Chapter 12 considers the plant community phenomena which are implicated in the development of theory about vegetation change The final chapter Chapter 13 draws the diverse themes together into a unified theoretical structure by which the vegetation change phenomena may be understood

Frugivores and seed dispersal Alejandro Estrada, T.H. Fleming, 2012-12-06 A wide variety of plants ranging in size from forest floor herbs to giant canopy trees rely on animals to disperse their seeds Typical values of the proportion of tropical vascular plants that produce fleshy fruits and have animal dispersed seeds range from 50 to 90% depending on habitat In this section the authors discuss this mutualism from the plant's perspective Herrera begins by challenging the notion that plant traits traditionally interpreted as being the product of fruit frugivore coevolution really are the outcome of a response counter response kind of evolutionary process He uses examples of congeneric plants living in very different biotic and abiotic environments and whose fossilizable characteristics have not changed over long periods of time to argue that there exists little or no basis for assuming that gradualistic change and environmental tracking characterizes the interactions between plants and their vertebrate seed dispersers A common theme that runs through the papers by Herrera Denslow et al and Stiles and White is the importance of the fruiting environment i.e. the spatial relationships of conspecific and non conspecific fruiting plants on rates of fruit removal and patterns of seed rain Herrera and Denslow et al point out that this environment is largely outside the control of individual plant species and as a result closely coevolved interactions between vertebrates and plants are unlikely to evolve

General Technical Report INT., 1987 Managing Forests as Complex Adaptive Systems Christian Messier, Klaus J. Puettmann, K. David Coates, 2013-02-11 This book links the emerging concepts of complexity complex adaptive system CAS and resilience to forest ecology and management It explores how these concepts can be applied in various forest biomes of the world with their different ecological economic and social settings and history Individual chapters stress different elements of these concepts based on the specific setting and expertise of the authors Regions and authors have been selected to cover a diversity of viewpoints and emphases from silviculture and natural forests to forest restoration and from boreal to tropical forests The chapters show that there is no single generally applicable approach to forest management that applies to all settings The first set of chapters provides a global overview of how complexity CAS and resilience theory can benefit researchers who study forest ecosystems A second set of chapters provides guidance for managers in understanding how these concepts can help them to facilitate forest ecosystem change and renewal adapt or self organize in the face of global change while still delivering the goods and services desired by humans The book takes a broad approach by covering a variety of forest biomes and the full range of management goals from timber production to forest restoration to promote the maintenance of biodiversity quality of water or carbon storage

The SAGE Handbook of Biogeography Andrew Millington, Mark Blumler, Udo Schickhoff, 2011-09-22 A superb resource for understanding the diversity of the modern discipline of biogeography and its history and future especially within geography departments I expect to refer to it often Professor Sally Horn University of Tennessee As you browse through this fine book you will be struck by the diverse topics that biogeographers investigate and the many research methods they use Biogeography is interdisciplinary and a commonly voiced concern is that one biogeographer may not readily understand another's research findings A handbook like this is important for synthesising situating explaining and evaluating a large literature and pointing the reader to informative publications Geographical Research A valuable contribution in both a research and teaching context If you are biologically trained it provides an extensive look into the geographical tradition of biogeography covering some topics that may be less familiar to those with an evolution ecology background Alternatively if you are a geography student researcher or lecturer it will provide a useful reference and will be invaluable to the non biogeographer who suddenly has the teaching of an introductory biogeography course thrust upon them Adam C Algar

Frontiers of Biogeography The SAGE Handbook of Biogeography is a manual for scoping the past present and future of biogeography that enable readers to consider where relevant how similar biogeographical issues are tackled by researchers in different schools In line with the concept of all SAGE Handbooks this is a retrospective and prospective overview of biogeography that will Consider the main areas of biogeography researched by geographers Detail a global perspective by incorporating the work of different schools of biogeographers Explore the divergent evolution of biogeography as a discipline and consider how this diversity can be harnessed Examine the interdisciplinary debates that biogeographers are contributing to within geography and the biological sciences Aimed at an international audience of research students academics researchers and practitioners in biogeography the text will attract interest from environmental scientists ecologists biologists and geographers alike Indonesian Primates Sharon Gursky-Doyen, Jatna Supriatna, 2010-01-15 Indonesia possesses the second largest primate population in the world with over 33 different primate species Although Brazil possesses more primate species Indonesia outranks it in terms of its diversity of primates ranging from prosimians slow lorises and tarsiers to a multitude of Old World Monkey species macaques langurs proboscis monkeys to lesser apes siamangs gibbons and great apes orangutans The primates of Indonesia are distributed throughout the archipelago Partly in response to the number of primates distributed throughout the Indonesian archipelago Indonesia is classified as the home of two biodiversity hotspots Wallacea and Sundaland In order to be classified as a hotspot an area must have a large proportion of endemic species coupled with a high degree of threat including having lost more than 70% of its original habitat Two areas within Indonesia meet these criteria The tremendous diversity of primates in Indonesia in conjunction with the conservation issues facing the primates of this region created a need for this volume Where Have All the Birds Gone? John Terborgh, 2020-10-06 Things are going wrong with our environment writes John Terborgh even the parts of it that are nominally protected If we wait until all the answers are in we may find ourselves in a much worse predicament than if we had taken notice of the problem earlier By waiting one risks being too late on the other hand there can be no such thing as being too early Terborgh's warnings are essential reading for all who care about migratory birds and our natural environment Why are tropical migrant species disappearing from our forests Can we save the birds that are left Terborgh takes a more comprehensive view of migratory birds than is usual by asking how they spend their lives during the half year they reside in the tropics By scrutinizing ill planned urban and suburban development in the United States and the tropical deforestation of Central and South America he summarizes our knowledge of the subtle combination of circumstances that is devastating our bird populations This work is pervaded by Terborgh's love for the thrushes warblers vireos cuckoos flycatchers and tanagers that inhabited his family's woodland acreage while he was growing up birds that no longer live there in spite of the preservation of those same woods as part of a county park The book is a tour of topics as varied as ecological monitoring the plight of the Chesapeake wetlands the survival struggle of Central American subsistence farmers and the management of commercial forests Guidelines and Sample Protocol for Sampling Forest Gaps James Reade Runkle, 1992 Embryo Transfer, 1979-85 Sheldon Cheney, 1985 Quick Bibliography Series, 1976 Effects of Resource Distribution on Animal Plant Interactions Mark D. Hunter, Takayuki Ohgushi, Peter W. Price, 2012-12-02 Aimed primarily at advanced graduate students and professional biologists this book explores the degree to which animal-plant interactions are determined by plant and animal variability Many of the patterns seen in natural communities appear to result from cascading effects up as well as down the trophic system Variability among primary producers can influence animal and plant population quality and dynamics community structure and the evolution of animal-plant interactions Seed Dispersal Andrew J. Dennis, 2007 The chapters of this book on seed dispersal are divided into four parts 1 frugivores and frugivory 8 chapters 2 seed and seedling shadows 7 chapters 3 seed fate and establishment eight chapters and 4 management implications and conservation six chapters The book presents both recent advances and reviews of current knowledge
