The Ecstasy Of Things From Functional Object To Fetish In Twentieth Century Photography:

The Ecstasy of Things Thomas Seelig, 2004 The twentieth century was among all else a century of things From the handmade object to the mass produced these things that once served a purpose soon became harbingers of beauty modernity and innovation Beyond the material these objects have stimulated fantasies that convey an image about a time and a place so that now even an everyday telephone or radio that has long been discontinued can experience a rebirth as a cult object only to be purchased for lofty sums of money at an auction The Ecstasy of Things illustrates how product photography reflects the world of things as captured in varying lights for designers manufacturers and advertising agencies Collected here are nearly 500 photographs many of which were unearthed from company and agency archives worldwide on behalf of the Fotomuseum Winterthur and the Swiss Photography Foundation This book most impressively demonstrates how the emotional and symbolic content of an object was represented through the changing tastes and aesthetics throughout the twentieth century At the same time the collection is a wealth of forms a colorful compendium of design and a photographic history of the past century as illustrated through our possessions The Ecstasy of Things, 2004 Dwell, 2005-09 At Dwell we re staging a minor revolution We think that it s possible to live in a house or apartment by a bold modern architect to own furniture and products that are exceptionally well designed and still be a regular human being We think that good design is an integral part of real life And that real life has been conspicuous by its absence in most design and architecture magazines

Photography and Cinema David Campany, 2008-11-15 This account of photography and cinema shows how the two media are not separate but in fact have influenced each other since their inception David Campany explores photographers on screen photographic and filmic stillness photographs in film the influence of photography on cinema and the photographer as a filmmaker OCLC Stop Reading! Look! Pepper Stetler, 2015-12-07 Examines the connections between the emergence of Weimar photographic books and modern conceptions of photographic meaning Vinyl Dominik Bartmanski, Ian Woodward, 2020-06-08 Recent years have seen not just a revival but a rebirth of the analogue record More than merely a nostalgic craze vinyl has become a cultural icon As music consumption migrated to digital and online this seemingly obsolete medium became the fastest growing format in music sales Whilst vinyl never ceased to be the favorite amongst many music lovers and DJs from the late 1980s the recording industry regarded it as an outdated relic consigned to dusty domestic corners and obscure record shops So why is vinyl now experiencing a rebirth of its cool Dominik Bartmanski and Ian Woodward explore this question by combining a cultural sociological approach with insights from material culture studies Presenting vinyl as a multifaceted cultural object they investigate the reasons behind its persistence within our technologically accelerated culture Informed by media analysis urban ethnography and the authors interviews with musicians DJs sound engineers record store owners collectors and cutting edge label chiefs from a range of metropolitan centres renowned for thriving music scenes including London New York Tokyo Melbourne and especially Berlin what emerges is a story of a modern icon      Life & Afterlife in Benin Okwui Enwezor, 2005-07-06 A new chapter in the history of African and world photography      Frieze, 2004      The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2006      Where is the Photograph? David Green, 2003 With photography's increasing incorporation into a wide range of fine art practices and the rapid development of evermore sophisticated electronic and digital technologies it is clear that it is now extremely difficult to say precisely where and how we are to define the boundaries that separate photography from other media We have been forced to abandon our preconceptions about what a photograph might be or mean and to ask the more fundamental question of where in the complex space created by contemporary technologies and representational practices something called the photograph might be what it might mean for us to identify it and try to relate it to the reality beyond This collection of essays draws together a range of different historical and philosophical perspectives as a way of addressing the significant changes that have taken place in our critical and theoretical understanding of photography and the photographic over the past decade

BOOK JACKET      The Materiality of Exhibition Photography in the Modernist Era Laurie Taylor, 2020-12-30 This book challenges the status quo of the materiality of exhibited photographs by considering examples from the early to mid twentieth century when photography's place in the museum was not only continually questioned but also continually redefined By taking this historical approach Laurie Taylor demonstrates the ways in which materiality as opposed to image was used to privilege the exhibited photograph as either an artwork or as non art information Consequently the exhibited photograph is revealed like its vernacular cousins to be a social object whose material form far from being supplemental is instead integral and essential to the generation of meaning The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history history of photography theory of photography curatorial studies and museum studies      Sex Objects Eric Kroll, 1977

Photography in the Twentieth Century Petr Tausk, 1980      Encyclopedia of Twentieth-Century Photography Lynne Warren,      Claude Cahun Gen Doy, 2020-08-13 This is the first single authored book in English on the photographer Claude Cahun whose work was rediscovered in the 1980s Doy moves beyond standard postmodern approaches instead repositioning the artist born Lucy Schwob in the context of the turbulent times in which she lived and seeing the photographs as part of Cahun's wider life as an artist and writer a woman and lesbian and as a political activist in the early twentieth century Doy rethinks Cahun's approach to dress and masquerade looking at the images in light of the situation of women at the time and within the prevailing beauty culture Addressing Cahun's ambivalent relationship with Symbolism and later relationship with Surrealism this highly readable book also looks at Cahun's unusual approach to the domestic object
