resist the mourning for the other Mourning and Disaster provides an insight into a series of questions raised by the public mourning that followed these two events What for example do the messages contained in the public books of condolence signed in the wake of these events tell us either about the social identities of the people who mourned or about the processes of meaning making by which death is apprehended and understood What do condolence books tell us about how contemporary society mourns and the ways in which loss is language Is it the case that in episodes of public mourning in which the deceased are not known to us personally the mourner might actually be mourning some aspect of themselves Is it also the case that in not mourning these events some aspect of one s own identity or self was being repudiated or mourned Drawing upon both the public books of condolence signed in Britain during the public mourning for these events alongside the author s own autobiographical memories of them it is to these sorts of questions amongst others that this book seeks to provide answers
