America building in Baltimore now better known as 10 Light Street and the Uptown Theater on Connecticut Avenue NW in Washington Although possibly less glamorous or flamboyant than exemplars in New York or Miami the authors find these structures along with apartment houses and government buildings typical of the Deco architecture found throughout the United States and well worth preserving Demonstrating how an international design movement found its way into ordinary places this study will appeal to architectural historians as well as regional residents interested in developing a greater appreciation of Art Deco architecture in the mid Atlantic region The American Skyscraper Roberta Moudry,2005-05-09

Archaism, Modernism, and the Art of Paul Manship Susan Rather, 2014-11-06

Archaism an international artistic phenomenon from early in the twentieth century through the 1930s receives its first sustained analysis in this book The distinctive formal and technical conventions of archaic art especially Greek art particularly affected sculptors some frankly modernist others staunchly conservative and a few who like American Paul Manship negotiated the distance between tradition and modernity Susan Rather considers the theory practice and criticism of early twentieth century sculpture in order to reveal the changing meaning and significance of the archaic in the modern world To this end and against the background of Manship's career she explores such topics as the archaeological resources for archaism the classification of the non Western art of India as archaic the interest of sculptors in modern dance Isadora Duncan and Ruth St Denis and the changing critical perception of archaism Rather rejects the prevailing conception of archaism as a sterile and superficial academic style to argue its initial importance as a modernist mode of expression The early practitioners of archaism including Aristide Maillol Andr Derain and Constantin Brancusi renounced the rhetorical excess overrefined naturalism and indirect techniques of late nineteenth century sculpture in favor of nonnarrative stylized and directly carved works for which archaic Greek art offered an important example Their position found implicit support in the contemporaneous theoretical writings of Emmanuel Levy Wilhelm Worringer and Adolf von Hildebrand The perceived relationship between archaic art and tradition ultimately compromised the modernist authority of archaism and made possible its absorption by academic and reactionary forces during the 1910s By the 1920s Paul Manship was identified with archaism which had become an important element in the aesthetic of public sculpture of both democratic and totalitarian societies Sculptors often employed archaizing stylizations as ends in themselves and with the intent of evoking the foundations of a classical art diminished in potency by its ubiquity and obsolescence Such stylistic archaism was not an empty formal exercise but an urgent affirmation of traditional values under siege Concurrently archaism entered the mainstream of fashionable modernity as an ingredient in the popular and commercial style known as Art Deco Both developments fueled the condemnation of archaism and of Manship its most visible exemplar by the avant garde Rather's exploration of the critical debate over archaism finally illuminates the uncertain relationship to modernism on the part of many critics and highlights the problematic positions of sculpture in the modernist discourse

Stamper, 1991-08-27 Since its opening in the 1920s Chicago s North Michigan Avenue has been one of the city s most prestigious commerical corridors lined by some of its most architecturally distinctive business residential and hotel buildings Planned by Daniel Burnham in 1909 the avenue became the principal connecting link between downtown and the wealthy residential Gold Coast north of the Loop Some thirty buildings were constructed along its path in the ten year period before the Depression an urban expansion comparable in significance to that of Pennsylvania and Park Avenues John W Stamper traces the complex development of North Michigan Avenue from the 1880s to the 1920s building boom that solidified its character and economic base describing the initiation of the planning process by private interests to its execution aided by the city s powerful condemnation and taxation proceedings He focuses on individual buildings constructed on the avenue including the Renaissance and Gothic inspired Wrigley Building Tribune Tower and Drake Hotel and places them within the context of factors governing their construction property ownership financing zoning laws design theory and advertising Stamper compares this stylistically diverse mixture of low and high rise structures with earlier rejected planning proposals all of which had prescribed a uniformly designed European like avenue of continuous cornice heights consistent facade widths and complementary stylistic features He analyzes the drastically different character the avenue took by 1930 with high rise towers reaching thirty stories and beyond in terms of the clash among economic political and architectural interests His argument that the discrepancies between the rejected plans and reality illustrate the developers choice of economic return on their investment over aesthetic community is extended through to the present avenue and the virtual disregard of the urban qualities proposed at its inception Generously illustrated with an epilogue condensing the avenue s history between the end of World War II and the present this is an exhaustive account of an important topic in the history of modern architecture and city planning
