Strategies For Success:

Strategies for Success among African-Americans and Afro-Caribbeans Chrystal Y. Grey, Thomas Janoski, 2017-12-18 How can African Americans and Afro Caribbeans from the former British colonies be so different in their approaches toward social mobility Chrystal Y Grey and Thomas Janoski state that this is because native blacks grow up as strangers in their own country and immigrants from the English speaking Caribbean are conversely part of the dominant group Unlike previous research that compares highly educated Afro Caribbeans to the broad range of African Americans this study holds social class constant by looking only at successful blacks in the upper middle class from both groups This book finds that African Americans pursue overachievement strategies of working much harder than others do while Afro Caribbeans follow an optimistic job strategy expecting promotions and success However African Americans are more likely to use confrontational strategies if their mobility is blocked The main cause of these differences is that Afro Caribbeans grow up in a system where they have many examples of black politicians and business leaders 35 90% of their countries are black and African Americans have fewer role models 12 14% of the United States are black Further the schooling system in Afro Caribbean countries does not label blacks as underachievers because the schools are almost entirely black A further problem that African Americans face is the resentment of a small but significant number of blacks who have little social mobility They accuse socially mobile African Americans of acting white which is a phenomenon that Afro Caribbeans almost never face and they call it an African American thing To demonstrate this difference Strategies for Success among African Americans and Afro Caribbeans does a historical comparative analysis of the differences between the black experience after slavery in the United States and Jamaica Trinidad and Tobago Guyana and St Kitts Nevis The authors interview fifty seven black people and find consistent differences between the US and Caribbean black citizens Using theories of symbolic interaction and resentment this work challenges previous studies that either claim that Afro Caribbeans are more motivated than African Americans or studies that show that controlling for class each group is more or less the same

Success from Scratch Nick Ruiz, 2017 Nick Ruiz is a TWICE self made entrepreneur who started out in real estate in his late teens and built a multi million dollar net worth by his mid twenties The big housing collapse and economic crisis of 2008 crushed him and eventually forced him into bankruptcy After being completely down and out for a short period of time he quickly applied the psychological strategies and wisdom he had gained from his years of business experience and bounced back Soon after the bankruptcy he was able to build and scale his business back very quickly Because of his claim to fame of starting from complete scratch the first time and starting again after complete financial disaster he is able to really show people how to create success from scratch no matter where you are coming from Since then he has also built a very successful education business from scratch where he teaches people how to create financial independence in real estate with no money or credit

Success Factors of Regional Strategies for Multinational Corporations Patrick Heinecke, 2011-01-15 This work examines the factors that drive the success of

Multinational Corporations MNCs in their pursuit of regional strategies The author develops a comprehensive regional success factor model by which the effects of regional management autonomy and regional product and service adaptation on the regional success of MNCs as well as the interaction effects of regional orientation and inter regional distance are investigated The model is evaluated by means of the partial least squares PLS method on the basis of a survey based inquiry of the Fortune Global 500 firms with success indicator data for a period of nine years The findings highlight the importance of considering the different degrees of contextual influence in the design of regional strategies where low degrees of regional management autonomy and high levels of regional product service adaptation are found to be appropriate for MNCs to be regionally successful

Employees as Key Success Factors for Sustainability Strategies? Luisa

Henrike Schäfer,2016-03-21 Fully integrating sustainability into a corporate strategy has progressively become the ubiquitous norm However designing a credible effective sustainability strategy still appears to be a challenging task and lacking employee support frequently labels the strategies as insignificant public relations practices As the awareness for sustainability issues prevails the call for a substantial paradigm shift in corporate mindsets emerges For any sustainability strategy to be successful the affected employees need to be aligned and engaged behind it Human Resource Development HRD as proper training enabler for such strategies offers important voice and expertise to realize the true satisfaction of sustainability ambitions At the present time of globalization and due to the critical need to consider environmental social and financial consequences of business operations the sustainability movement cannot be considered a passing trend Since HRD is expected to play a facilitative role in establishing corporate sustainability this work proposes theoretical approaches linking HRD with sustainability and corporate responsibility The empirical purpose of this study is to investigate the current engagement of HRD in the field examining one fundamental question Assuming that employees are key success factors for sustainability strategies how can HRD professionals and departments ensure that sustainable behavior will be part of all members of a company Drawing from qualitative expert interviews with senior HRD managers of large companies that declare explicit commitment to sustainability within different industries the evidence shows that their engagement still tends to be limited This research concludes with an argument for greater involvement of HRD in corporate sustainability endeavors and offers suggestions for research and practice towards this end
