L. P. Jacks,2014-03 This Is A New Release Of The Original 1910 Edition      The Alchemy of Thought Lawrence Pearsall Jacks,1927      The Alchemy of Thought L. P. Jacks,2017-07-14 In another book from L P Jacks The Universe as Philosopher philosophy was defined as the self confession of Reality and the question arose How then can there be such radical differences between philosophies But from the other side it can be argued with equal cogency that the philosopher creates his world since to interpret experience is to control it This is certainly an extreme contradiction but in its very extremeness lies the hope of its solution and along with it of the proposed question The opposite conclusions are not only intelligible but necessary for the very reason that they lie within the unity of a universal Self consciousness No system of philosophy has any meaning out of relation to the systems from which it differs What for example would become of Pragmatism if there were no Idealism to reject Philosophy is an organic whole the logical prius of all the philosophies and that system comes nearest to absolute truth which shows the largest capacity for taking up the others into itself by means of the principle which is the living spring of them all If we conceive of God as the immanent life of all thought it involves the admission that not only is a plurality of self expressions compatible with the unity and self consciousness of the whole but it is an inherent logical necessity if we are to speak of God in any of the terms that are applicable to Spirit The Philosophical Review Vol 17      The Alchemy of Thought SASHA.
