to be an arena for scholars and experts in social and political science as well as practitioners and policymakers to meet and exchange ideas and perspectives for a better future of our society Transforming the United Nations System Joseph E. Schwartzberg, 2016-09-02 Global problems require global solutions The United Nations as presently constituted however is incapable of addressing many global problems effectively One nation one vote decisionmaking in most UN agencies fails to reflect the distribution of power in the world at large while the allocation of power in the Security Council is both unfair and anachronistic Hence nations are reluctant to endow the United Nations with the authority and the resources it needs Extensive reform is essential This analysis is rooted in the proposition that the design of decisionmaking systems greatly affects their legitimacy and effectiveness Joseph Schwartzberg proposes numerous systemic improvements to the UN system largely through weighted voting formulas that balance the needs of shareholders and stakeholders in diverse agencies It indicates ways in which the interests of regions can supplement those of nations while voices of nongovernmental organizations and ordinary citizens can also be heard In numerous contexts it promotes meritocracy and gender equity The book's aim is not to create an unrealistic utopia but rather to establish a workable world in which the force of law supplants the law of force a world committed to justice and continuous yet sustainable development The author argues that given the many existential threats now confronting our planet the time frame for decisive action is short The task is daunting and success is not guaranteed but in view of the urgency of our situation we can find ways of mustering the will imagination and resources to do the job
