agrarian reform and the subsequent counter reform in producing a successful dynamic evolution of Chilean agriculture

Harvesting Change Laura J. Enriquez, 2000-11-09 One of the principal aims of the Sandinista government in Nicaragua was to end the exploitation of the rural poor But its attempts to promote balanced economic development and redistribute agricultural resources created labor shortages that threatened the country's economic lifeline New employment opportunities created through agrarian reform upset the delicate balance developed in pre revolution years to meet the labor requirements of Nicaragua s two key crops cotton and coffee Laura Enriquez studied this problem extensively while working in Nicaragua between 1982 and 1989 and in Harvesting Change she provides a unique analysis of the dilemmas of reform in an agrarian society Enriquez describes the traditional labor relations of Nicaragua's agroexport production and outlines their breakdown as agrarian reform advanced She also assesses the alternatives adopted by the Sandinista government as it attempted to address the crisis Her book is based on participant observation and on formal and informal interviews with a broad cross section of people involved in agricultural production including officials involved in agrarian reform planning and labor producers workers and representatives from associations of growers workers and peasants By presenting agrarian reform in its broad social context Enriquez makes and important contribution to our understanding of the problems associated with the transition to socialism in the Third World Originally published in 1991 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value The Crisis of Rural Poverty and Hunger Mohamad Riad El Ghonemy, 2007 No further information has been provided for this title The Agricultural and

Food Sector in the New Global Era Alessandro Bonanno,1993 Free Market Democracy and the Chilean and Mexican Countryside Marcus J. Kurtz, 2004-04-05 This book examines the relationship between free markets and democracy It demonstrates how the implementation of even very painful free market economic reforms in Chile and Mexico have helped to consolidate democratic politics without engendering a backlash against either reform or democratization This national level compatibility between free markets and democracy however is founded on their rural incompatibility. In the countryside free market reforms socially isolate peasants to such a degree that they become unable to organize independently and are vulnerable to the pressures of local economic elites This helps to create an electoral coalition behind free market reforms that is critically based in some of the market's biggest victims the peasantry. The book concludes that the comparatively stable free market democracy in Latin America hinges critically on its defects in the countryside conservative free market elites may consent to open politics only if they have a rural electoral redoubt The New Enclosures: Critical Perspectives on Corporate Land Deals Ben White, Saturnino Borras Jr., Ruth Hall, Ian Scoones, Wendy Wolford, 2013-09-13 This collection explores the complex dynamics of corporate land deals from a broad agrarian political economy perspective with a special focus on the implications for property and labour regimes labour processes and structures of accumulation This involves looking at ways in which existing patterns of rural social differentiation in terms of class gender ethnicity and generation are being shaped by changes in land use and property relations as well as by the re organization of production and exchange as rural communities and resources are incorporated into global commodity chains It goes further than the descriptive what and who guestions in order to understand the how and why of these patterns It is empirically solid and theoretically sophisticated making it a robust and boundary changing work Contributors come from various scholarly disciplines Covering nearly all regions of the world the collection will be of interest to researchers from various disciplines policymakers and activists This book was originally published as a Special Issue of the Journal of Peasant Studies Land Law Reform ,2006-01-01 Land Law Reform examines the wide spread efforts to reform land law in developing countries and countries in transition drawing in particular upon the experience of the World Bank and the Rural Development Institute The book considers the role of land law reform in the development process and analyzes how the World Bank has sought to support these legal changes in client countries It reviews the experience with reform of laws affecting land access and rights in achieving gender equity identifies opportunities for reinforcing environmentally sustainable development through land law reform and examines from both growth and poverty alleviation perspectives the effectiveness of reforms to formalize property rights and liberalize land markets The concluding chapter recommends some basic priorities for land law reforms John W Bruce is a senior counsel in the Legal Vice Presidency of the World Bank and a former director of the Land Tenure Center of the University of Wisconsin Madison He has published extensively on land law and land policy in developing countries Renee Giovarelli David Bledsoe Leonard Rolfes and Robert Mitchell are staff attorneys with the Rural Development Institute of Seattle Washington a

Magidimisha, 2020-12-10 This book delves into the Fast Track Land Reform Programme FTLRP in Zimbabwe to provide insight into how it facilitated the delivery of housing for low income urban households It highlights the politics of land reforms and the power of community engagement in housing development in urban areas Prior to the FTLRP the Zimbabwean governments had never embraced popular modes of housing production as key factors in urban development In the area of low income housing informal housing schemes have always been treated with apathy and indifference This left the conventional mode of housing production to be the only legitimate means to house low income households despite its shortcomings However the onset of the FTLRP in 2000 resulted in homeless urban households grasping the opportunity to invade farms for housing development Through the lenses of Marxism and Neoliberalism this book analyses housing schemes that emerged and the overall impact of the FTLRP on housing and land delivery in Harare This analysis is based on empirical evidence obtained from key informants and household surveys conducted in Harare The authors argue that the FTLRP provided a platform for innovativeness by households supported by the unpronounced national urban vision and prowess of the political leadership Hence the success of these housing schemes can be measured by acquisition of land which guarantees households access to the city However some of these housing schemes pose challenges key among them being lack of infrastructure The book concludes by presenting a new model for effective delivery of land and housing for the urban poor This is envisaged as a useful policy tool for urban planners housing experts land economists urban and regional geographers as well as sociologists political scientists and social workers engaged in public administration of land and The Political Economy of Rural Poverty M. Riad El-Ghonemy, 2006-05-10 With the use of wide ranging case housing studies the author clearly illustrates the impact of schemes intended to re allocate land in developing countries Concluding that land reform can play a major part in stimulating rural economies this book explores the extent to which such policies can successfully reduce poverty and increase agricultural growth The ^AOxford Handbook of Land Politics Saturnino M. Borras, Jennifer C. Franco, 2025-08-29 Access to land in all its multiple meanings is necessarily diverse complex and contentious and facilitating and maintaining such access constitutes a mosaic of social relations and institutional instruments rather than the minimalist and simplistic reduction of land to land property that in turn tends to be interpreted always as individual private property The Oxford Handbook of Land Politics offers heterodox analytical tools to help the reader make sense of the complexity of the politics of land Integrated Land-Change Science and Tropical Deforestation in the Southern Yucatan B. L. Turner, 2004-02-19 This highly topical study of tropical deforestation in Mexico reports on the first phase of the Land Cover and Land Use Change in the Southern Yucatan Peninsular Region Project LCLUC SYPR a large multi institutional and team based study designed to understand and project land changes in a development frontier that pits the rapidly growing needs of smallholder farmers to cut down forests for cultivation against federally sponsored initiatives committed to various international programmes of forest preservation and complementary economic programmes The SYPR project is a response to inderdisciplinary defined research themes deemed critical to global environmental change and complementary international research agendas e g environment and development ecosystem assessment biotic diversity. Pivotal among these agendas are those posed by the Land Use Cover Change LUCC effort of the International Geosphere. Biosphere Programme and the International Human Dimensions of Global Environmental Change Programme as it is linked through such USsponsors as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA and the National Science Foundation. NSF The themes i e questions and subjects posed by these programmes and organization are integrated or synthesis in kind meaning that they rest within the intersection of formaldisciplines and are intended to fit into a larger systems framework about human environment relationships and the structure and function of the biosphere The editors of this volume as most of its contributors come from the disciplines of geography ecology and economics. The lead editor the geographer B L Turner II has spent most of his career in pursuit of understanding different aspects of tropical deforestation and agriculture. The Spaces of Neoliberalism Jacquelyn Chase, 2002 Annotation Explores how markets and market ideology affect the lives of Latin American people through their communities culture resource base local labor markets and households Among the topics of the eight papers are tensions between women s and indigenous groups over land rights gender and reproduction in a Brazilian company town and the restructuring of labor markets and household economies in urban Mexico Annotation c Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com
