Reader feedback in text design Menno de Jong, 2022-06-08 Brochures play a significant role in governmental public information provision Every year many brochures are distributed to inform instruct or persuade people These brochures may benefit from a systematic design process including applied research such as pretesting Among communication professionals the importance of pretesting is practically undisputed Readers from the target audience are assumed to provide valuable insights into whether a document really works Organizations therefore increasingly try to include a pretest in the design process of important documents Various pretest methods have been developed and are being used in practice However little is known yet about the merits and restrictions of the available approaches This book provides a framework for scholarly research into pretesting and presents a series of studies into the validity of one particular pretest instrument a combination of the plus minus method and a semi structured questionnaire This is one of the prevailing pretest approaches in the Dutch public information sector The validity of the pretest instrument is assessed in two complementary ways First the question is addressed as to whether a revision on the basis of pretest results actually leads to an improvement in the functional quality of brochures Second a study is presented in which text and subject matter experts judge the importance of pretest results The pretest instrument appears to yield a large amount and a great variety of reader feedback which in a subsequent revision may contribute to significant improvements in the effectiveness of brochures and Herve Guibert this book studies how the figures of homosexuality function at the limits of narrative as part of the deep structure of narrative and at the border between public and private discourse The first three chapters follow the difference between inside and outside between public and private between what is known and what can only be surmised The homosexual Rene Crevel who is both inside Surrealism and outside it forces us to reread the marginalized figure of homosexuality in Surrealism Crevel is discussed in light of his most important work Mon corps et moi a sustained effort to negotiate the problems of public and private personae Long before concentrating on Jean Genet Jean Paul Sartre often turned to the subject of homosexuality in his writings of the 1930s and 1940s The figures and forms of homosexuality in Sartre's work are shown to relate to a phenomenology of perception to a persistence of the relation between vision and knowledge and to a set of narrative ploys that put Sartre's own relation to homosexuality in a new light The last of these three chapters focuses on Roland Barthes with a retrospective glance at Andre Gide through an examination of their travel and confessional writings Discourses of homosexuality are related to discourse about social power dominant structures and a model of colonialism The final chapter examines the AIDS related works of Herve Guibert which are both a meditation on and an exploration of AIDS that most public of private phenomena It also examines the changing relation between public and private between the outside world and Guibert's inner world and between the singularity of literary writing and the nomothetic nature of the public document all of which change in a world and in an individual affected by AIDS
