

SORT MANAGEMENT

Sorting waste into different categories is the first step in the recycling process. This involves separating materials like paper, plastic, glass, and metal from each other. Proper sorting ensures that each material can be recycled efficiently and safely.

CLEANING

Waste materials must be thoroughly cleaned before they can be recycled. This process removes contaminants like food residue, oil, and other impurities that could interfere with the recycling process or harm the environment.

WASTE NOT THE WASTE

Recycling is a key component of waste management. By reusing materials, we can reduce the amount of waste sent to landfills and conserve natural resources. Recycling also helps to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and protect the environment.

WASTE CONTAINER

Waste containers are essential for collecting and storing waste materials. They help to keep the environment clean and prevent waste from being scattered or blown away. Properly labeled and maintained waste containers are crucial for effective waste management.

WASTE SORT

Sorting waste into different categories is a critical step in the recycling process. Workers at the sorting facility use various methods, including manual sorting and automated systems, to separate materials like paper, plastic, glass, and metal. This ensures that each material can be recycled efficiently.

GARBAGE TRUCK

Garbage trucks are responsible for collecting waste from households and businesses. They travel along designated routes, stopping to pick up trash and deposit it into designated waste containers or transfer stations. Proper waste collection is essential for maintaining a clean and healthy environment.

CLEANER

Cleaners play a vital role in maintaining the cleanliness of waste management facilities. They ensure that waste containers, sorting areas, and processing equipment are free from dirt, debris, and contaminants. This helps to prevent odors, pests, and environmental pollution.

RECYCLING PLANT

The recycling plant is the central hub where waste materials are processed and transformed into new products. It involves a complex series of steps, including sorting, cleaning, and manufacturing, to ensure that recycled materials are of high quality and can be used safely.
