N. Spyra,2014-08-25 The causes and effects of climate change are just as varied as the proposed solutions and approaches for dealing with the problem Given the global character of climate change comprehensive global cooperation is called for that leads to effective and appropriate international action in accordance with the respective responsibilities These will inevitably differ depending on the capabilities and the social and economic situations of the respective actors The contributions in this book present a variety of ideas approaches and tools regarding the adaptation to climate change in specific countries and regions In addition to examining existing legal instruments they also focus on the implementation of economic instruments and planning tools as well as their further development Rather than simply discussing strategies to counteract climate change by reducing emissions the authors also search for ways of actively adapting to climate change Changing Paradigms of Rural Management Dr Ramesh Kumar Miryala,2013-02-28 Mahatma Gandhi in his famous speech during the Lahore session of the Congress in 1929 said India lives in her villages It is relevant even today after eight decades progress and an astonishing invasion of technology Technological progress and the tremendous development of the IT sector often blind many of us to the toils of the rural tiller who brings our daily lunch No effort for national development can ignore the villages they determine the destiny of the country Rural development is no more something that emerges from the common sense of a select few it is the result of organized work involving the techniques of modern management This emphasizes the need of a broad based research in the field of rural management also reflecting in management education This book is an attempt in that direction I sincerely hope that this book will provide insights into the subject to faculty members researchers and students from the management institutes consultants practicing managers from industry and government officers Africa's Changing Agricultural Development Strategies Christopher L. from severe floods there are reports of decreasing water reserves in the southern regions and of gradual changes in biodiversity and agricultural production In the South Caucasus area for instance climate change models project a decline in precipitation and suggest that it will continue to become drier this century Many Eastern European countries especially the non EU ones have weak national climate policies and transboundary collaborations as well as limited public engagement in matters related to climate change As a result climate change poses a serious threat to their economic stability and development and to the sustainable development of the region The above state of affairs illustrates the need for a better understanding of how climate change influences Eastern Europe and for the identification of processes methods and tools that may help the countries and the communities in the region to adapt There is also a perceived need to showcase successful examples of how to cope with the social economic and political problems posed by floods droughts in the region especially ways of increasing the resilience of agriculture systems and of communities Addressing this need the book presents papers written by scholars social practitioners and members of government agencies involved in research and or climate change projects in Eastern Europe
