Richardson, 2023-04-03 Suffering and Psychology challenges modern psychology's concentration almost exclusively on eradicating pain suffering and their causes Modern psychology and psychotherapy are motivated in part by a humane and compassionate desire to relieve many kinds of human suffering However they have concentrated almost exclusively on eradicating pain suffering and their causes In doing so psychology perpetuates modern ideologies of individual human freedom and expanding instrumental control that foster worthy ideals but are distinctly limited and by themselves quite self defeating and damaging in the long run This book explores theoretical commitments and cultural ideals that deter the field of psychology from facing and dealing credibly with inescapable human limitations and frailties and with unavoidable suffering pain loss heartbreak and despair Drawing on both secular and spiritual points of view this book seeks to recover ideals of character and compassion and to illuminate the possibility of what Jonathan Sacks terms transforming suffering rather than seeking mainly to eliminate anesthetize or defy these dark and difficult aspects of the human condition Suffering and Psychology will be of interest to academic and professional psychologists and philosophers Transforming Work, Second Edition John D. Behavioral and Psychological Approaches to Breathing Disorders R. Ley, B.H. Timmons, 2013-06-29 We start life with a breath and the process continues automatically for the rest of our lives Because breathing continues on its own without our awareness it does not necessarily mean that it is always functioning for optimum mental and physical health The opposite is true often The problem with breathing is that it seems so easy and natural that we rarely give it a second thought We breathe we inhale we exhale What could be simpler But behind that simple act lies a process that affects us profoundly It affects the way we think and feel the quality of what we create and how we function in our daily life Breathing affects our psychological and physiological states while our psychological states affect the pattern of our breathing For example when anxious we tend to hold our breath and speak at the end of inspiration in a high pitched voice Depressed people tend to sigh and speak at the end of expiration in a low toned voice A child having a temper tantrum holds his or her breath until blue in the face Hyperventilation causes not only anxiety but also such a variety of symptoms that patients can go from one specialty department to another until a wise clinician spots the abnormal breathing pattern and the patient is successfully trained to shift from maladaptive to normal breathing behavior
