The Air Mines Of Mistila:

The Air Mines of Mistila Sylvia Kantaris, Philip Gross, 1988 High above the plain up where the mountainside melts into cloud lies an unmapped plateau Kantaris son was in Colombia and he told her about Mistila She mentioned it to Gross In response he sent her a poem She replied In three months they populated the Mistilan plateau with a cast of characters who live eke out their livelihoods and die Like us almost This collaboration between two poets was a Poetry Book Society Choice

The Poetry Review, 1988 In Black and Gold C. C. Barfoot, 1994 In Black and Gold indicates that opposed styles of poetry reveal subterranean correspondences that occasionally meet and run together Austerity or tomfoolery are two of the many valid responses to the human condition that create the contiguous traditions that cannot help touching and reacting to each other The poetry discussed in this book deals with the relation of individuals to strange or to familiar landscapes and what this means to their own sense of displacement or rootedness with the use of history as an escape from or as a challenge to an apparently failing present and with the role of nationalism either as a refuge for angry frustration or as a weapon against the affronting world or as an ambivalent loyalty that needs to be scoured or as all three Here we find poetry as a means of discovering true or false allegiances and valid or invalid public and private identities poetry as a medium for exploring the uses of the demotic in confronting the breakdowns and injustices of modern democracy poetry as play in the midst of private and public woe poetry as a spiritual quest as a spiritual scourging as a wrestling with spiritual absences and poetry as an intermittent and sporadic commemoration of the triumphs and delights of epiphanic encounters with the physical world The Oxford Companion to Twentieth-century Literature in English Jenny Stringer, 1996 Survey of
