Greely, 2015-07-22 Excerpt from Handbook of Alaska Its Resources Products and Attractions Forty years have passed since the foresight and negotiations of a great statesman William H Seward added to our national domain the immense and valuable Territory of Alaska It has contributed to our public wealth products worth more than three hundred millions of dollars yet to this day it is a terra incognita to the American public Not only is the ordinary man of affairs ignorant of the general features of Alaska but this is also true of the usually well informed Indeed in a widely circulated and standard work of geographic reference the errors relative to the Territory are simply astounding in number as well as in character The great economic value of the more northern parts of North America is being gradually recognized as indicated by the rapidly increasing wealth of north western Canada and by the construction of the trans continental Grand Trunk Railway with its terminus at the southeastern boundary of Alaska For
