MICHAEL DOWNEY

Peace of the Present: An Unviolent Way of Life. By John S. Dunne. Notre Dame, IN: University of Notre Dame Press, 1991. xii + 140 pages. $19.95.

In his prologue to Martin Buber's I and Thou, Walter Kaufmann notes that among the most important things Buber teaches the reader is how to read. Buber's words are familiar but the way he conveys his insights challenges the reader to wrestle with each word and phrase again and again to release its personal meaning.

John Dunne's latest work, Peace of the Present: An Unviolent Way of Life, like his other works, presents the same kind of challenge. Dunne converses with ideas, with himself, and with other writers in such a way that the reader is drawn into the conversation as a participant, not merely as passive listener.

Dunne explores the unviolent life, beginning with the ways of desire. He observes that mimetic desire, wanting what others want, dominates a great deal of contemporary behavior. We can learn to live our own lives and truth only by discovering our heart's desire and acting out of it instead of the desires of others. Likewise, through violence we often imitate the actions of others, wanting to hurt as we have been hurt. Non-violence comes from learning to follow the heart's desire to know and to love.

Through successive chapters on Violent and Unviolent Ways, Waiting on Love, and The Peaceable Kingdom, Dunne unpacks his initial insights. With each turn of the page there are interesting turns of thought to explore ideas first from one angle, then another. Yet despite an overall positive response to Dunne's work, this reviewer was left with a slight sense of uneasiness that somehow the discussion might not advance beyond an intellectual level.

Ideas from earlier works like "passing over to another's vantage point" or "acting without seeking the fruits of action" echo here within a new perspective. Yet what seems to be missing is an encounter with the other as other, a sense of mutual relationship that is essential in dealing with a subject like non-violence.

This missing link is most evident in Dunne's last chapter on the sense of "I" in Christianity. Here the author includes "conversations" with several contemporary thinkers which reveals only the briefest of discourses, but not the give and take of genuine dialogue involving the whole person. Perhaps the problem lies in Dunne's starting point which focuses on just one aspect of the meaning of "I." He sees the Christian sense of the "I" as a hollow place where God comes to dwell, somewhat like the Buddhist sense of non-self.

Such a view can be very helpful and provocative, but only within a context in which the full meaning of the self is expanded and clarified. The self that interacts with others in knowing and being known, in loving and being loved, is a self-in-relation. An interpretation of a Christian sense of the "I" will need to allow for a center where God comes to dwell as well as an identity in which relations are essential, not accidental. A genuinely human peace will need to balance both these elements.
