Targeting Of Transfers In Developing Countries Review Of Lessons And Experience:

Targeting of Transfers in Developing Countries David Coady, Margaret E. Grosh, John Hoddinott, 2004 Drawing on a database of more than one hundred anti poverty interventions in 47 countries Targeting of Transfers in Developing Countries provides a general review of experiences with methods used to target interventions in transition and developing countries Written for policymakers and program managers in developing countries in donor agencies and in NGOs who have responsibility for designing interventions that reach the poor it conveys what targeting options are available what results can be expected as well as information that will assist in choosing among them and in their implementation Key messages are While targeting works the median program transfers 25 percent more to the poor than would a universal allocation targeting performance around the world is highly variable Means testing geographic targeting and self selection based on a work requirement are the most robustly progressive methods Proxy means testing community based selection of individuals and demographic targeting to children show good results on average but with considerable variation Demographic targeting to the elderly community bidding and self selection based on consumption show limited potential for good targeting There is no single preferred method for all types of programs or all country contexts Successful targeting depends critically on how a method is implemented The CD ROM includes the database of interventions an annotated bibliography PDF and Spanish and Russian translations of the book PDFs Targeting of Transfers in Developing Countries David Coady, 2004

Targeting social transfers in pastoralist societies: Ethiopia's productive safety net programme revisited Lind, Jeremy, Sabates-Wheeler, Rachel, Hoddinott, John F., Taffesse, Alemayehu Seyoum, 2018-09-20 In the Ethiopian highlands the Productive Safety Net Programme PSNP is a successful social safety net intervention in terms of both targeting and impact By contrast existing studies situated in the country's lowland Afar and Somali regions suggest that PSNP targeting is beset with difficulties This is deeply concerning given that these predominantly agro pastoral and pastoral areas have some of the country's highest levels of poverty and food insecurity and that there is an absence of viable livelihoods outside of pastoralism in these localities In this paper which draws on three rounds of household survey data from 2012 2014 and 2016 we show that there has been no meaningful improvement in targeting performance since 2010 We assess five explanations for this resources and under coverage the involvement of traditional leaders in targeting insufficient training attitudes of program implementers and transparency adducing that norms regarding fairness and a lack of transparency are the most likely explanations for continued poor targeting The PSNP experience calls into question the effectiveness of technocratic fixes as well as the appropriateness of targeting transfers in pastoralist societies

Improving the targeting of fertilizer subsidy programs in Africa south of the Sahara: Perspectives from the Ghanaian experience Houssou, Nazaire, Asante-Addo, Collins, Andam, Kwaw S., 2017-03-17 This paper assesses whether fertilizer subsidy programs can be better targeted to resource poor farmers using the case of Ghana and proxy means test approaches Past fertilizer subsidy programs in the country have not been particularly targeted to the poor even as targeting poor and smallholder farmers has become key in the program implementation guidelines As a result many poor farmers have not benefited from past programs Our results show that targeting approaches based on proxy means tests that use the correlates of poverty to select beneficiary farmers can potentially improve the poverty outreach and cost effectiveness of Ghana's fertilizer subsidy programs Therefore we propose that the proxy means test approach should be considered for implementing Ghana's fertilizer subsidy programs first in a pilot project involving a few communities and later if found successful in a full scale program
