

2019 TEACHER ENRICHMENT WORKSHOP

by Michael Naughton

The attendees of IL ASTA's 2019 Teacher Enrichment Workshop were treated to a day of engaging learning. On that Saturday, the spacious library at Maine South High School was used to facilitate discussion, movement, and music-making.

After a mingling period over coffee, Dr. Judy Palac presented a wealth of information on body mapping. Body mapping is a method that seeks to consciously correct the mind's mental representation of our bodies toward healthier movement and posture. An Emeritus Professor at Michigan State University, Dr. Palac was passionate about discussing students' health and wellness to ensure lifelong playing free of injury. She explained how our minds conceive of the geography of bodies and how that influences movement. The audience was then treated to in-depth information about the structure of bodies and places of flexibility and movement. Dr. Palac also led the attendees in a series of movement activities and warm-ups that encouraged wellness and demonstrated how they might be taught to our students.

Following lunch, the attendees listened to a highly informative lecture about the ASTA String Curriculum by its lead author, Dr. Stephen Benham from Duquesne University. Dr. Benham detailed the history behind the standards, their sequence, and their practical applications. This included examples in structuring curriculum, grading assessments, and advocating to administrators.
