When the numerically infinitesimal values of the terms u_n indefinitely approach a fixed value, so that finally they differ from it by as little as desired, the limit is called the limit of all the values.

Let $u_1, u_2, u_3, u_4, u_5, \dots, u_n, \dots$ be the terms of the series given, n being any integer. If the increasing values of n , the more u_n approaches a certain limit u , the series will be called convergent, and the limit in question will be called the sum of the series.

The function $f(x)$ will be a continuous function of the variable x between two assigned limits a and b when between a and b , for each value of x between these limits, the numerical infinitesimal value of the difference $f(x) - u$ is $f(x)$ decreases indefinitely with x . In other words, the function $f(x)$ is continuous with respect to x between the given limits if, between these limits, an infinitely small increment in the variable always produces an infinitely small increment in the function itself.

Let h , a few infinitely small numbers, the limit is a number so that for all numerical [that is, assigned] values of x from a to b , and for any value of n , included between the limits a and b , the value

$$f(x) - u < \frac{1}{n}$$

will always be greater than $f(x) - u$ and less than $f(x) + u$.
